100,000 NAZIS RETREAT ON CENTRAL FRONT

Railway Trainmen Set Sept. 15 as Date for Strike

Fact-Finding Board Will Be Appointed by F.D.R. As Result of Action

Legal Strike Cannot Be Called until 30 Days after Group Makes Report to the President

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—E. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen announced tonight that 6 a. m., on Sept. 15 had been set as the time and date for the strike of the five operating railroad brotherhoods.

The leaders of the nineteen railroad unions, operating and non-operating, were authorized by the membership last Friday to call a strike. At that time the non-operating unions, embracing 900,000 members, set Sept. 11 as the strike date.

Today's action automatically sets in motion the provisions of the Railway Labor act, under which the president is required to appoint a fact-finding board which must report to him within thirty days.

The setting of the dates for the strike does not mean that the nation's carriers will cease to function on Sept. 11 or Sept. 15. No legal strike can be called until thirty days after the fact-finding board has reported.

Whitney's office said it was expected that President Roosevelt would name a board when he returns to the capital, possibly tomorrow, from Hyde Park, N. Y., where he attended the funeral today of his mother, Sara Delano Roosevelt.

The strikes were called to enforce demands for wage increases. The five operating unions have demanded a thirty per cent increase in basic rates of pay for approximately 500,000 workers, of which the lowest paid, switch tenders, receive $5.06 daily. Wage increases of from thirty to thirty-four cents an hour have been asked by the fourteen non-operating unions, with 850,000 members.

Survivor Says German Plane Sank Seafarer

Asserts Crew Refused to Machine Gun Sailors After Explosion

(By The Associated Press)
SUZ, Egypt, Sept. 9.—The first mate of the American freighter Steel Seafarer declared today the ship was sunk in the Red sea by a German plane whose crew refused to machine-gun the survivors as they clambered into lifeboats.

He was among the two dozen of the ship's personnel who landed here this afternoon with a vividly detailed story of the attack last Friday and with a variety of opinions as to whether the fatal blow was struck by an angling bomb or aerial torpedo.

The crew generally agreed that the ship was struck below the waterline by the closest thing to a "near miss" and that it sank quickly.

They told of spending nearly twelve hours in rowboats and then twenty-four more hours on a rocky island before a British warship rescued them. The other twelve of the crew were picked up by another British ship.

Attacked At Night
Tall, ruddy Robert Cartwright, of Taubert Island, Mass., the Helmsman said:

It was 11:30 o'clock Friday night when it happened. The moon was full and we were steaming peacefully northward. Suddenly I heard a very heavy explosion to starboard and the ship rocked like we had struck a reef.

At the same time I heard an

Churchill Asks For Greater Help By U. S. Navy in Atlantic Battle

Declares Nazis Are Much Hampered by American Naval Forces Patrolling Sea Routes to Britain

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Sept. 9. Winston Churchill expressed the wish today that American naval forces already patrolling the Atlantic approaches to the Western Hemisphere might be of even "greater help" to the British in the battle for that ocean of destiny.

At the same time, describing the Allied front as running now in a vast arc from Spitzbergen in the Arctic to Tobruk in the Western desert of Africa, he promised without amplification that "adequate naval power will be at hand" to hold the Atlantic and Indian Ocean routes of supply against Axis attack.

The struggle for the Atlantic dominated the prime minister's comprehensive review before the House of Commons—a review that was essentially cheerful although he warned that Hitler might soon change tactics and engage the United States naval forces in those waters—but he ranged, too, from the Russian front to the now inactive theater in Libya.

Nile Army Is Ready
As to Libya, he announced that powerful new British reinforcements had reached the Army of the Nile and now stood ready to defeat a German invasion of Egypt.

As to Russia, he declared that its "magnificent resistance" already had cost the Germans more blood in three months than they lost in any year of the World war. That Hitler already was facing the necessity of having to maintain his forces from the Arctic to the Black Sea "with precarious lines of communication through all the severities of the Russian winter and the vigorous counter-strokes that may be expected of the Russian armies."

Still, he said, the Soviet's need of supplies was urgent since "a considerable part of the munitions industry of Russia has fallen into the hands of the enemy," and thus Britain herself must expect some reduction in the American aid upon which she had counted to permit its diversion to the Soviet.

"If the United States are to fulfill the task they are setting themselves," he remarked, "large installations will have to be set up or converted and there will have to be a further curtailment of civilian consumption over there."

Of the long and bitter combat in the Atlantic, Churchill reported an enormous improvement in the British position, saying that largely

Haller Wants Republican Party To Concentrate on Legislature

More Important than Trying to Elect G.O.P. Governor, He Says

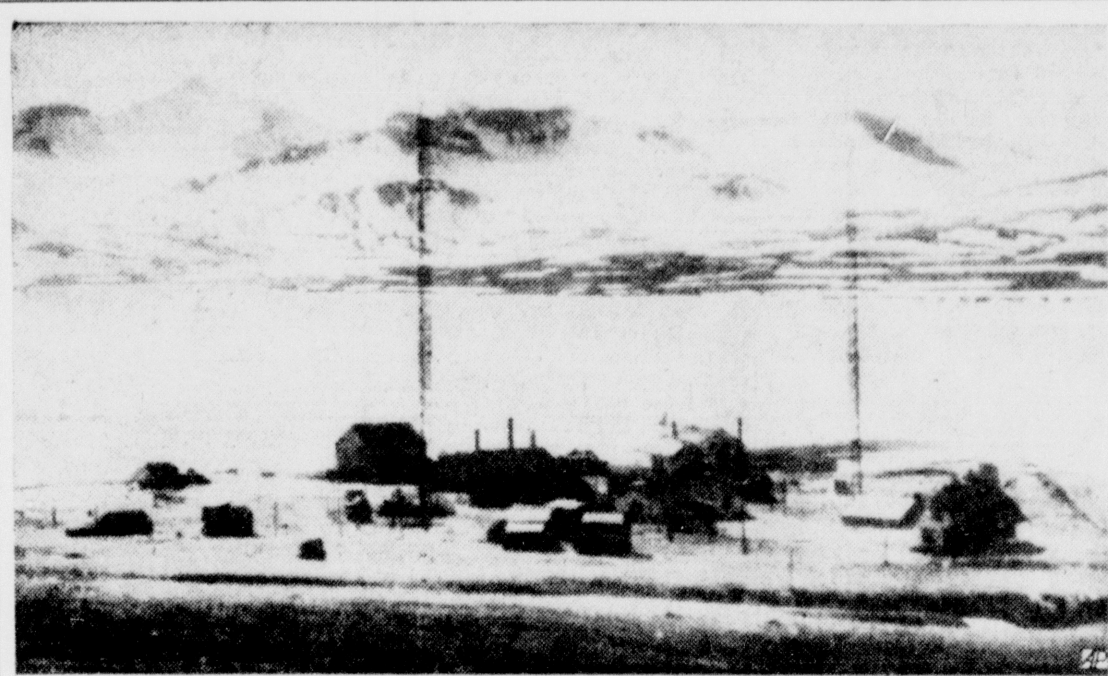

FREDERICK, Md., Sept. 9. (AP)—W. Harry Haller, Frederick county Republican leader, believes the party should concentrate more on electing members of the legislature in 1942 than on trying to elect a Republican governor.

Writing in the New Citizen, a political weekly paper, Haller said "our party wastes time and energy in any attempt to elect a Republican governor next year."

(The state's last Republican governor was the late Harry W. Nice, who ended the long administration of the late Albert C. Ritchie. Nice was defeated in 1938 by Herbert R. O'Connor, Democratic incumbent, who is expected to seek a second term.)

Haller said the legislature, overwhelmingly Democratic, was "a real

BRITISH OCCUPY SPITZBERGEN ISLANDS

This is a radio station at Green Harbor, Spitzbergen, which was used as the base for several noted Arctic explorers. The war office in London announced that Canadian, British and Norwegian troops have occupied the Norwegian archipelago of Spitzbergen, 500 miles north of Norway in the Arctic Ocean, to prevent seizure by Germans coveting its rich coal mines.

Mrs. Roosevelt Is Buried with Episcopal Rites

Services for Mother of President Are Held in Churchyard

BY AMY PORTER
HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 9. (AP)—Sara Delano Roosevelt was buried today behind a little country church while her only son, the president of the United States, blinked away his tears.

Slanting rays of a late afternoon sun picked out the simple mahogany casket. The coffin head was laid to the west in keeping with an old tradition that on Resurrection day the arising dead should face the rising sun.

While the Rev. Frank R. Wilson conducted simple Episcopal rites at the family burial plot in St. James churchyard . . . "O Lord, support us all the day long, until the shadows lengthen and the evening comes" . . . the president, tense, face immobile, looked downward.

He never looked toward the grave as the casket, brightened with a single spray of assorted flowers, was lowered, nor did he return an anxious glance cast his way by his wife.

The president and eleven other members of the Roosevelt family stood in a silent semi-circle at the foot of the grave, while the Rev. Mr. Wilson read the solemn words: "Unto Almighty God we commend the soul of our sister departed, and we commit her body to the ground, earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust."

The church bell then tolled the hour of four.

The president stood with one hand on the open door of the White House sedan in which he rode to the cemetery, along with his wife and his son, James, and his mother's surviving brother and sister, Frederick A. Delano and Mrs. Price Collier.

Tension was so great that when Mrs. Collier coughed, Mr. Roosevelt started. He lapsed into immobility until he was aroused again

Ickes' Proposal For Oil Pipeline From Texas to Atlantic Rejected

Supply Priorities Board Says Steel Is Needed in Ship Construction for National Defense

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. (AP)—A proposal of Secretary Ickes to construct by next spring an $80,000,000 oil pipeline from the east Texas oil fields to the east coast was rejected today by the Supply Priorities and Allocations Board.

The interior secretary, who is also defense petroleum administrator, was not present at the meeting and for that reason officials said the board did not pass on ultimate construction of the line. Instead, the board refused to grant priorities for steel plates for the line. Ickes is out of the city on vacation.

There has been a shortage of steel plates which are used in ship construction, and Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, recently opposed the oil line proposal in testifying before a Senate committee investigating the petroleum situation. He contended that steel for ships should take preference in the defense program to steel for an oil line.

May Use Seamless Tubes
Officials of the priorities board said that if the line is built later it will be constructed of seamless steel tubes.

Those present at the meeting were Vice President Henry A. Wallace, chairman; William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, co-directors of the Office of Production Management; Harry L. Hopkins, lend-lease administrator; James V. Forrestal, undersecretary of the Navy, substituting for Secretary Knox; Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson; and Leon Henderson, price administrator; Donald M. Nelson, executive director of the board, and Robert P. Patterson, undersecretary of War.

Board officials declined to disclose the vote on the pipe line proposal.

Earlier in the day, Ralph K. Davies, acting petroleum co-ordinator, insisted that present curtailment of retail gasoline sales must continue and demanded construction of the pipeline "as a matter of national defense just as vital as warships and planes."

American Recruit for RAF Describes How German Sub Stalked Vessel

Four U.S. Fliers Lost when Ship Sinks; Polish Warship Rescues Survivors

By EDDY GILMORE
LONDON, Sept. 9. (AP)—The vessel on which four American recruits for the RAF were killed recently was trailed for more than a day by the attacking submarine, one of the seven survivors disclosed here tonight.

The survivor, Jim Jordan, of Pasadena, Calif., also disclosed for the first time the names of the four who lost their lives. They were: Harry Hay, Tallahassee, Fla.; William Bishop, Cleveland, O.; Frank Kruszynski, whose address was unknown to Jordan, and a youth whose last name was Cox, from New York city.

"The last two didn't train with me," Jordan said, "but I got to know them on the boat."

Jordan, who like the other fliers was trained in Canada for RAF duty, donned his uniform today and

American-Owned Freighter Sessa Sunk by Torpedo

All but Three of Crew of Twenty-seven Lost at Sea

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. (AP)—The S.S. Sessa, an American-owned freighter flying the flag of Panama, was sunk by a torpedo on Aug. 17 about 300 miles Southwest of Iceland, the state department announced today, and all but three of her crew of twenty-seven were presumed lost.

The crew included one American. The announcement followed by one day receipt of word in Washington that another American freighter—the S.S. Steel Seafarer—had been sent to the bottom of the Red Sea by an airplane of unknown nationality on Sept. 7. All hands were saved.

The state department announcement did not say what ship had fired the torpedo into the Sessa, but Secretary Hull told his press conference that there was no doubt of its nationality. The Sessa was sunk, presumably, in the general area of the skirmish last Thursday between a German submarine and the American Destroyer Greer.

The new incidents, coming so soon after the Greer's clash, added a new strain to the already severely frayed relations between the United States and the Axis nations. They also provided new material for the speech which President Roosevelt will deliver Thursday night. Some expect it to contain a declaration that the United States will meet force with force on the high seas.

Former Danish Ship
The Sessa was a former Danish ship taken over by the United States under recent legislation authorizing requisitioning of idle foreign vessels. It was chartered by the maritime commission to the Marine Operating Company of New York, and later was transferred to Panamanian registry. Transfer to foreign registry is a procedure frequently adopted to permit vessels to enter combat zones barred under the Neutrality act to vessels manned by American crews. The water around Iceland is not recognized as a combat area by the United States government, therefore, officials said, it was legal for the crew to include an American.

Three members of the Sessa's crew were picked up Sept. 6, at a point some 300 miles Southwest of Iceland, the state department said. The ship was said to be carrying to

Berlin Predicts Fall of Leningrad Within Reasonable Space of Time

Declare Russian City Is Being Attacked by Every Military Means at Command of Germany

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, Sept. 9.—The great city of Leningrad, surrounded and isolated from the rest of Russia, is being attacked by every military means at Germany's command and "should be taken within a reasonable space of time," authorized Nazi sources declared tonight.

Both the high command and accounts of authoritative commentators told of bombs and shells from the massed might of German air and artillery forces pounding relentlessly into the heart of the city.

By all German accounts the plight of the old capital of Peter the Great grew more desperate with each passing hour.

Plants Under Fire

Its 3,200,000 people are unable even to keep their industrial facilities in operation because the plants are under "continuous fire," said Dienst Aus Deutschland, authoritative German commentary service. The high command told of the final encirclement, crediting it to "speed divisions of the German Army, excellently supported by air force combat units." These troops reached the Neva river East of Leningrad on a broad front, Adolf Hitler's headquarters said, and then a single infantry regiment pushed across the river and captured Schlesselburg, on Lake Ladoga, twenty-one miles east of the main objective.

This clinched the encirclement, German commentators declared, pointing out that the name Schlesselburg means "key city" in German and that Peter the Great renamed the old fortress that when he built Leningrad, realizing that it was in truth the city of his capital's defense.

They said the success of the entire maneuver was being bolstered and assured by the constantly active squadrons of German bombers, both Stukas and level-flight types.

DNB, official news agency, said a German pursuit squadron yesterday shot down sixteen Russian bombers off the Martin type within fifteen minutes. The location was not disclosed.

4,000 Russians Captured
The mere cutting off of Leningrad, German military correspondents declared, has made the Russian Arctic port of Murmansk useless, since its railway line runs to Leningrad and it therefore is without a land route for food and supplies.

Far to the south, on the shore of the Black sea, another encirclement continued in force against Odessa.

On the Central front, military commentators said more than 4,000 Russians were taken prisoner and 238 Russian tanks and 102 guns were destroyed or captured in fighting Northeast of Bialystok, which is sixty miles Southwest of Smolensk.

The numerically superior Russian forces made an attack which was repulsed; then a German counter-attack broke into the Soviet lines, with deadly effect, they said.

Willkie Charges Nye Is Trying to Disunite Nation

Movie Industry Feeding Patrons on "Propaganda", Senator Asserts

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. (AP)—A Senate subcommittee, beginning an investigation of war propaganda, heard an assertion by Senator Nye (R-ND) today that the motion picture stands to make millions of dollars in annual profits if Great Britain wins the war.

Countering Nye's additional assertion that "four or five individuals" within the industry had the power to make the theater-goers of the United States "feed on propaganda," Wendell L. Willkie declared in a public statement that Nye was seeking to "high pressure" the movie makers "to stop producing accurate and factual pictures on Nazism."

Supporting his contention that movie producers had a financial stake in the outcome of the war which might influence them toward the dissemination of propaganda, Nye said that the profits on many films depended on foreign sales.

He said one company which collected $80,000,000 in 1940, received $8,000,000 from showing its films in England, that amount representing its profit from all sales. If Britain lost the war, he went on, with deadly effect, they said.

Confidence in Final Red Army Victory Is Growing in Official Quarters of Moscow

(By The Associated Press)
MOSCOW, Wednesday, Sept. 10.—The Red Army's biggest victory of the war on the Central front where shattered remnants of a 100,000-man Nazi force are reported in disordered retreat, drew from an official Soviet spokesman today the declaration that "the impending rout of all the German armies can already be discerned."

In confident and expansive mood, S. A. Lozovsky, assistant foreign commissar who serves as liaison with the foreign press, said this vast operation, plus the unending counter-attacks by the Russians before Odessa and the determined stand of Leningrad's defenders are "signs of growing Red Army resistance."

"Our confidence in final victory is growing," he added.

The Soviet Information Bureau, reporting on yesterday's fighting, fell back on its usual brief statement that stubborn battles still raged along the entire front.

Air War Is Furious
It emphasized the fury of the air war with the announcement that on Sunday seventy-one German planes were destroyed in combat and on the ground against twenty-four Russian losses. Two Nazi reconnaissance planes were reported downed near Moscow in daylight yesterday.

The victorious Soviet forces on the Central front, under the personal direction of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko, were declared in hot pursuit of survivors of the German forces. Here the Russians were reported officially to have reconquered 150 square miles of territory and fifty villages in two days.

Rain and cold which already has set in on the Northern front, Lozovsky said, "is only a contributing factor" to the defeat of the Germans.

"The main thing is," he added, "that the might of the Red Army, the unity of the Soviet people, re-

Germans Will Sink any Vessels Found in War Zones

U. S. Ships Using Red Sea Are "Provocative," Officials Say

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, Sept. 9.—The Germans warned again tonight that all ships in Axis-declared war zones are subject to attack "regardless of nationality" and indicated that either an Italian or German plane sank the American freighter Steel Seafarer in the Red Sea Friday night.

A spokesman said, however, that "it was beyond discussion that there should be any general order to attack American ships."

Since the Red Sea has long been considered a war zone by the Axis, he said, no one should be surprised that the Steel Seafarer was sunk there. He pointed out that the 5,719-ton vessel was lost while en route to Suaz, presumably with lease-lend supplies for the British.

President Roosevelt's all clear signal April 11, lifting the ban on American vessels in the area, was described by the Germans as "provocative" like the incidents involving the U. S. Destroyer Greer and the merchantmen Robin Moor and Zamzam.

"Theorizable warmongers wanted the United States to wage a sea war without declaring war," said the Hamburger Fremdenblatt.

There was no immediate comment on a Washington announcement that a supply ship en route to Iceland was sunk by torpedo Aug. 17.

Emphasizing the activity of Axis bombers in the Red Sea area, the high command announced today the sinking of a 7,000-ton tanker and the damaging of five other large merchantmen in a Sunday night raid on shipping over Suez Gulf and Roadstead.

Witness Discloses F.B.I. Supervised Sending Spy's Messages to Germany

William G. Sebald, 42, Testifies in Espionage Conspiracy Case

By PAT McGRADY
NEW YORK, Sept. 9. (AP)—A lanky, limping veteran of Germany's World war army, who professed to hate his native country, disclosed today that the Federal Bureau of Investigation, in a counter-espionage move, had virtually supervised for the last eighteen months transmission to Germany of defense information by alleged spies.

The witness, William G. Sebald, 42, a naturalized citizen and a government witness, advised a wide-eyed Brooklyn courtroom, where sixteen men are being tried on charges of participating in a gigantic espionage conspiracy, that ever since April, 1940, an FBI-controlled radio station on Long Island had been clearing messages to the German spy center in Hamburg.

Paid by the FBI
He, meanwhile, had been handing over to the FBI the cash and information that came to him from Hamburg and had received $50 a week from the FBI, he said.

Sebald told how in 1940 he came to this country after intensive training at a Hamburg espionage school. He said he had been assigned through force to transmit America's defense secrets via couriers, who carried documents boiled down to postage stamp size through microphotography.

United States Attorney Harold M. Kennedy asked the witness if a secret radio transmitter set was built.

The witness said it was.

"By whom?"

"By the FBI."

"And who operated it?"

"Two FBI agents."

He said they followed faithfully instructions Hamburg dispatched to Sebald and he said the station had operated until now.

Fort Meade Troops To Maneuver in Southern Areas

Field Training in Virginia Will Precede Trip to North Carolina

PORT GEORGE, Md., Sept. 9 (AP)—Officers and men of three Virginia regiments will spend the coming weekend in their home state while waiting for the rest of the Twenty-ninth Infantry division to join them Monday at the A. P. Hill military reservation.

The Virginia troops, 7,500 strong, will leave Fort Meade at daybreak Friday for the Carolina County, Va. training area, where most of the other units of the Twenty-ninth division will join them Monday for two weeks of field training.

Under plans announced today the brigade combat team, commanded by Brigadier General G. W. Alexander, will go through Washington en route to Virginia Friday.

Trucks used to move the combat team will then return to Fort Meade for use of the rest of the division. The Twenty-ninth division will take over the Virginia training area from the Twenty-eighth division, which returns to its home base at Indian town Gap, Pa., late this week.

After two weeks of training the Twenty-ninth will proceed to Morven, N. C., its base of operations during corps and army maneuvers throughout October and November.

The officers and men will take all field equipment and will wear wooden uniforms both in Virginia and in the Carolinas. Summer uniforms will be stored here.

Major Gen. Milton A. Reckord, division commander, told regimental commanders today that the units should travel "as light as possible." Neither officers nor enlisted men will be permitted to take civilian clothes or their own automobiles with them to North Carolina.

One company of battery from each regiment will be sent on to the North Carolina area Monday to prepare for the division's arrival October 6.

General Reckord said the movement from Virginia to North Carolina would be made "by easy stages," with part of the troops going by train. Motor columns will leave the A. P. Hill reservation Friday, October 3, and will spend Friday night at Camp Lee, Va., and Saturday night and Sunday at Fort Bragg, N. C.

In spite of the family's no flowers request, the side of the grave was banked with them and they overflowed into the rest of the plot.

Mrs. Roosevelt's grave was to the left of that of the president's father, James Roosevelt, who died in 1900. Nearby were the graves of Rebecca, first wife of James, and of the president's son and first namesake, who died in infancy.

Second Hearing Is Asked on Cut In Train Service

Protests Increase against Discontinuing B. and O. Trains

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9 (AP)—Confronted with a steadily-growing list of protests, the public service commission today called a second hearing into the contemplated abandonment of twelve passenger trains in Maryland.

The commission scheduled for next Tuesday a public inquiry into the proposal for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company to abandon the twelve trains on five of its lines in the state. The company last week announced its intention to discontinue the trains, asserting the press of national defense made it necessary to conserve its facilities wherever possible.

The PSC tomorrow will hold a similar hearing on the plan of the Western Maryland Railway Company to discontinue one round trip daily between Baltimore and Hagerstown.

Dr. Reuben Hoffman, superintendent of the negro branch of the Maryland Tuberculosis Sanatorium, entered a protest with the PSC against abandonment of B. & O. trains between Baltimore and Frederick.

Dr. Hoffman said the sanatorium, located near Henrytown, "would be badly hit by such an action. This train x x x offers the only cheap method of getting to and from the sanatorium."

Two Baltimoreans, both relatives of patients in the sanatorium, also entered protests.

The PSC also received numerous protests against the proposed discontinuance of B. & O. trains between Baltimore and Singler, between Baltimore and Frederick, between Baltimore and Laurel, and between Brunswick and Frederick.

One petition asking that trains retained on the so-called old main line of the B. & O. was filed by ten residents of Litchester and adjacent towns. The petition asked "that the matter be referred to the People's counsel so that it may be properly prepared for the consideration of your commission."

PSC officials said that protests against all the contemplated schedule changes would be heard at the same hearing and that any action would be automatically delayed, pending final settlement by the commission. The railroad had announced it would discontinue the trains on Sept. 17.

Spitzbergen Coal And Oil Burned

Destroyed To Prevent Nazis from Getting Large Supply of Fuel

(By The Associated Press) LONDON, Sept. 9.—Destruction of the Spitzbergen coal mines and the burning of great coal and oil reservoirs by Royal Canadian Engineers was confirmed tonight when British authorities, without explanation, lifted a ban against mentioning the extent of the demolition operations.

An eye-witness correspondent was permitted to report for the first time that five rich mining properties were rendered useless and that the torch was put to 400,000 tons of coal and 125,000 gallons of fuel oil.

The first announcement of the Spitzbergen foray had declared the prime aim of the venture was to keep the coal supply from covetous German hands.

But while the initial announcement of the Arctic expedition, it was still not permissible to say whether any of the Canadian-British-Norwegian landing force had been left to garrison the archipelago.

The war office remained pointedly silent on that phase of the operation, but Prime Minister Churchill today placed Spitzbergen on the Allied front against Germany and there were unofficial predictions that the invasion was only a foretaste of more to follow.

There would be no profitable foreign sales.

Willkie, silenced by a committee ruling that he could not cross-examine witnesses in his capacity as counsel for motion picture producers, handed reporters a prepared reply to Nye's charges that the motion picture industry was disseminating propaganda to get the United States into war. Nye was the first witness.

The 1940 Republican presidential nominee previously had characterized the hearing as a "foolish show." In his statement, he charged that Nye, who had said that no anti-Semitic cause was to be served by a formal inquiry into propaganda, was seeking to "divide the American people into discordant racial and religious groups, in order to disunite them over the United States foreign policy."

Nye had suggested that the committee investigate these films: "Convoy," "Flight Command," "Escape," "I Married a Nazi," "That Hamilton Woman," "Man Hunt," "The Great Dictator," and "Sergeant York." He added that this was only a partial list of those he believed contained propaganda.

Search for Lost Bomber Continues

Plane with Crew of Six Disappears in Puget Sound Area

TACOMA, Wash., Sept. 9 (AP)—An army twin-motored bomber with six men aboard disappeared in the rainswept Puget sound area today during a training flight.

The plane, a B-18 type, was last heard from at 4:59 a. m. PST and had fuel enough to last until 8 a. m.—It was enroute from Seattle to the army's McChord Field air base, a distance of only twenty-two air-line miles.

An aerial search was abandoned at noon because of rain and a zero ceiling. Foot parties took up the search.

The following were aboard: Second Lieut. Edward H. Valorz, 28, Chicago, chief pilot. Valorz, a well-known wrestler, won the 191-pound national amateur title a year ago. He was graduated from the University of Chicago.

Second Lieut. John W. Winship, 25, Riverside, Calif., co-pilot.

Staff Sgt. Robert D. Dexter, 23, Victorville, Calif., radio operator.

Sgt. James W. Page, 30, Seagoville, Tex.

Rising Profits And Wages Hit By Morgenthau

Curb Desire for More Money, Business, Labor and Farmers Urged

BOSTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Declaring that the nation faces inflation now and "must deal with it at once," Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau tonight called upon laborers, farmers and business men to curb their desires for higher wages and profits in the interest of the nation's welfare.

The public must be taxed more, spend less, save faster and submit to increased regulation, he added in a long-promised pronouncement of his views on inflation delivered before the Advertising Club of Boston. Morgenthau proposed these two general methods of combating inflation:

1. By curbing demand for commodities, by higher taxes, Regulation of installment credit and increased savings.

2. By controlling prices, specifically by releasing for consumption surpluses of all commodities—particularly farm products—"as fast as necessary to prevent unreasonable price rises."

As a complementary step, the treasury chief renewed his plea for reduction of "non-essential" federal expenditures and for economy in state and local governments as well.

Praising President Roosevelt's recent veto of a bill to freeze government stocks of cotton and wheat, Morgenthau declared that "we ought not to withhold cotton surpluses, or any other surpluses, from the market in times like these."

"It is sheer folly from the farmer's point of view to push prices up by creating scarcities in times like these."

"It is sheer folly in the same way for labor leaders to seek new increases in wages every few months—new increases which in turn produce higher manufacturing costs, higher prices and a higher cost of living."

It is short-sighted for a landlord to charge all that the traffic will bear in defense centers where housing space is at a premium.

"It is poor business in the long run, for any business man to seek exorbitant profits in this period of defense spending."

"It is bad banking in the long run, for any banker to exploit the present demand for funds by seeking to charge unreasonable interest rates."

EAGLE SQUADRON LOSES THREE MEMBERS IN FIGHT OVER FRANCE

LONDON, Sept. 9 (AP)—Three fliers of the American Eagle Squadron were listed as missing today from flights in which surviving pilots said they met "a hell of a lot of Messerschmitts" over occupied France Sunday.

Those missing were Eugene Quimby (Red) Tobin of Los Angeles, H. S. Fenlaw of Lewisville, Tex., and William H. Nichols of San Carlos, Calif.

An Eagle Squadron source said that the loss Sunday was the squadron's heaviest of the war. Its fliers have shot down at least sixteen German planes.

"Our boys just ran into tough opposition," said a flier. "Messerschmitts were literally swarming over France. There were at least a hundred in one flight."

Weather in Nearby States

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA AND WEST VIRGINIA—Local thunder-showers and cooler Wednesday and Wednesday night followed by generally fair with moderate temperature Thursday.

Coal Price Hearing Gets under Way In Washington

Session Is Interrupted by Sharp Exchanges between Attorneys

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9 (AP)—A hearing of maximum prices recommended for bituminous coal got under way although interrupted at times by sharp exchanges between consumers counsel and attorneys for the industry.

During an exchange, Dr. Luther Harr, consumers counsel, questioned the good faith of a cross-examining lawyer, and the lawyer accused Harr of issuing press releases unfair to the coal industry.

Harr, petitioner for a ceiling on prices, delivered an opening statement before an examiner for the Bituminous Coal Commission conducting the hearing, amid repeated objections and interruptions from attorneys representing coal producers.

The attorneys contended Harr was "making a speech" or uttering statements without basis or qualification.

In a two-hour cross-examination by John W. Guider, counsel for producers of District 7, Southern West Virginia and Virginia, Harr declined to answer many questions, saying the best sources of the information sought would be witnesses his office was prepared to place on the stand.

Asked repeatedly for a numerical estimate of price complaints he said he had received by mail, Harr said: "I am not going to guess. I have some rights here, too. I think the questioner is not acting in good faith."

A murmur of protest went up from attorneys, and one of them quickly moved to strike the statement from the record.

Guider said, however: "I ask that it remain in the record. It will pave the way for me to test the witnesses' good faith."

The motion to strike was then withdrawn.

Guider wove into his questions criticisms of passages in Harr's press releases, one of which dealt with his opening statement today. He questioned particularly a statement in the release that "consumers have responded patriotically to the appeal (to buy coal early) and it is only fair that they be protected against being exploited for their patriotism."

Levin said the cases would be grouped according to the question of law or its interpretation involved in the appeals. Fixed for hearing next week are eight cases involving two points of law, and one unclassified case.

All the cases are appeals from levies made by State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes.

Three More Cases Of Infantile Paralysis Reported in State

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9 (AP)—Reports of three more cases of infantile paralysis were received today by the state department of health, Dr. C. H. Halliday said, bringing the state's total for the year to 148.

Dr. Halliday, chief epidemiologist for the department, said that of the three cases reported today, only one had its inception this month, the other two having been August cases not previously reported.

Today's cases, he said, were reported from Montgomery, Talbot and Dorchester counties.

Although eighteen cases have been reported thus far in September, Dr. Halliday said, only three of them have actually had their inception this month, lending credence to the department's belief the poliomyelitis outbreak could be expected to subside in September.

Of the total number of cases reported in the state this year, seventy-two have come from the counties and seventy-six from Baltimore city, Dr. Halliday added.

Parents Should Help Children In Home Study

Unabridged Dictionary and Encyclopedia Should Be Provided

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Our children in school are engaged in very serious business. For them it has as much importance as we have, as your work and home. The future welfare of children hangs pretty heavily upon their school successes now. Any reasonable thing that can be done at home to help them get along a little better in school, should be done.

Parents ought to do their best to provide them with good learning materials. Besides their text books, paper, pencils and the like, they need reference books. The average child in the third or fourth grade, attending a modern school today, frequently has need of such help.

Home Equipment

Perhaps the most practical home equipment for the school child is an unabridged dictionary and a good encyclopedia. There are several outstanding ones. Each has its merits. You have doubts about your choice, examine several of them or

Young Republicans Support Willkie on Foreign Policy Stand

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9. (AP) — Full accord with Wendell Willkie's fight against isolationists within the Republican party has been expressed today by the Maryland Federation of Young Republicans.

In a statement signed by the group's executive committee—Harry Leeward Katz, chairman; Charles H. Cover, president; J. Oliver Long, Charles H. Croby and Weldon Ward—the federation declared:

"Men like Willkie, Stimson and Knox speak for the viewpoint of the rank and file of Republicans, and not the isolationist congressmen in Washington."

"With the rank and file of the G.O.P. everywhere, the statement said, 'we have viewed with increasing alarm the actions of certain Republican congressmen who, together with certain isolationist-appealer Democrats, have been pursuing a course fraught with the danger that there may develop in the country a tendency to regard the Republican party as the party of appeasers and defeatists. Such a label might well spell the doom of the Republican party as a national influence."

"The overwhelming opinion of the American people clearly is to have no part in tactics of isolationism and appeasement."

"That opinion prevails among the rank and file of voters of the Republican affiliation."

The federation declared that isolationist congressmen—Republicans as well as Democrats—"are steering a course opposed to the tide of public opinion."

Babson's Conviction Of A Hitler Defeat

ROGER W. BABSON, the celebrated economist, says he has received letters from readers of The Cumberland News asking him why he is so certain Hitler will lose World War No. 2. Therefore he addresses a letter to the editor of the News explaining the reasons for his conviction. These reasons will doubtless be of interest to all readers of this newspaper, for which reason they are here reproduced.

"Of course," Babson's letter says, "there are many reasons, including Great Britain's control of the seas, the latent manpower of the British empire, China, and Russia totaling a billion souls who can be trained and united; the tremendous industrial producing power of the United States when really awakened and, finally, the great superiority of these nations in natural resources compared with Germany, Italy and Japan. Not being in any sense a pacifist, I recognize the importance of these and other material forces. Preparedness is of vital importance.

"Far more important, however, is the spirit of those who are fighting for freedom and justice. The 'still small voice' in the human soul is more powerful than horses and chariots, or than tanks and bombers. As a sick man turns to God for help, so will the people of the innocent nations which the Germans today hold in brutal subjugation. I oppose and defy the popular belief that these subjugated people are 'helpless' because their arms and ammunitions have been taken from them and because they are watched by German police. Hundreds of millions of people in these subjugated countries can and will pray.

"The Gestapo can take the arms away from these millions; they can confiscate their writings and imprison those of them who speak for freedom and justice. The German military machine, even if multiplied a hundred fold, cannot prevent the Dutch, Greeks, Danes, Norwegians, Belgians, Balkans and other innocent peoples from praying. Ultimately, these millions will unite in doing this—silently and unbeknown to their brutal enemies. These prayers added to the material sacrifices and efforts which all of us must make will bring victory. The two combined have never been known to fail.

"All nations are now praying that their armies may be victorious; but such prayers may be selfish and, if so, are of no avail. Both sides in every war ask God to give them victory! This has not amounted to much. Today, however, a great third group of victimized neutrals are involved whose prayers will count. The great spiritual awakening which I have long been forecasting is coming. It may be born, however—not in the American and English churches as I had hoped—but in the souls of the downtrodden millions of Europe, Asia and Africa. Yes, I am a radiant optimist as to the ultimate outcome of this war and the better world which surely is to follow."

It is needless to say that readers hope Mr. Babson is correct in his conclusions, as to which, of course, only time can tell.

Pride of the Fleet Measures Up

DESCRIPTIONS of the new U. S. S. North Carolina, which has returned to port after its "shakedown" cruise, gave an opportunity for comparison with the famous German battleships, the Tirpitz and the ill-starred Bismarck.

Newsmen aboard the North Carolina were permitted to photograph the test firing, and their accounts of that final blast, when nearly the entire armament was discharged at one moment show what our new dreadnaughts can give and take.

Although some of the details of the North Carolina's construction have not been released, there is no secret concerning its general attributes. While its 35,000 tons place it in the Tirpitz class, apparently it is neither so fast nor so heavily armored as the German surprise vessels. How much the Bismarck could take the British will testify to, for even after its steering apparatus and propeller had been damaged, the attacking fleet had plenty of difficulty in dispatching it.

But if the North Carolina is not quite so swift or so well protected as the German craft, it has bigger guns. Its heaviest are sixteen-inch as compared to fifteen-inch guns on the Tirpitz. This factor compensates for the others, since it might easily mean the margin of victory in a battle. When the North Carolina let go with all nine of its sixteen-inch guns and ten of its twenty-five inch guns, the salvo was greater than had ever been fired by a ship.

The North Carolina staggered a moment under the impact, then carried on. When a check-up was made, only minor damage was found—light doors warped, moldings dislocated and the like.

Since even in battle it is unlikely that so many of its guns will be fired simultaneously, the North Carolina can be rated both seaworthy and powerful beyond all other ships afloat. Commissioned last April, it is the first battleship to be added to the United States Navy in eighteen years. Others will follow, together with smaller cruisers and destroyers, until this nation has a two-ocean navy capable of defending both coasts.

A Pretty High Price For Co-operation

REPORTS have emanated from Washington to the effect that an "all-around" settlement will soon be concluded with Mexico by which there will be an advance of $50,000,000 from the Export-Import Bank and a "token payment" by the Mexican government for the seized American-owned oil properties.

Protest is made, however, that there is no sense in thus joining these two separate problems because it would be to the prejudice of both. The two problems are separate and distinct. One is the war emergency objective of co-operation between the Mexican and the American governments on hemisphere defense. The other is the settlement of outstanding claims of American citizens against the Mexican government, most of which are due to the arbitrary confiscation of American property by the Mexican government and the repudiation of promises to pay it has made in the past.

It is declared that if the United States government has to sign away property of its citizens valued at hundreds of millions of dollars as the only way of obtaining the help it wants from the Mexican government, and if, in addition, it must advance large sums to a government hopelessly in debt for twenty-five years, it will be paying a pretty high price for so-called "co-operation."

The point is well taken. The two problems should be handled separately.

Now, It Seems, We're Short of Little Pigs

FARMERS must raise a whole lot more pigs than they have been raising, Secretary of Agriculture Wickard told them in a statement Monday night. They must also raise a whole lot more of everything, he declared. We must, he said, build up a "stockpile" to feed this country and "those resisting aggression."

Mr. Wickard is absolutely right. There is going to be a tremendous demand for food. It is going to be difficult to produce enough. Not much is being produced in many parts of Europe.

The statement of our secretary of agriculture, while perfectly sensible and proper at this time, however, caused many a laugh, particularly his reference to raising more pigs. It recalled the days of not so long ago when Uncle Sam paid farmers for not raising pigs and plowed under millions of bushels of crops. At the time this was being done many people quoted a passage in the Bible which says that in times of plenty prepare for times of scarcity. The New Dealers said these people were old-fashioned, couldn't get away from the horse and buggy days, and so on.

What possible excuse can the New Dealers make now for the scarcity of food? There is reason for them to admit that it might have been a good idea to have the "stockpile" which Secretary Wickard now advocates. It would have been quite a sizeable pile by now.

The Hunger Pinch Brought by War

AN IDEA of the deadly effect of war on food supplies is gained from the situation in France with respect to wheat. Last year that country, ordinarily producing almost enough grain to meet its domestic requirements, started with 14,000,000 tons of wheat. It begins this season with its stocks almost exhausted.

The Petain government has fixed not only the price of wheat, together with the price of bread, but is offering a bonus of eleven francs per quintal (220 pounds) for quick delivery of the grain.

Man power cannot be removed from a country's producing acres without cutting down its food supplies. Armies cannot tramp over a region without curtailing them. There is not a nation in Europe today which is not feeling more and more, as the war continues, the pinch of hunger.

Only time will disclose how devastating the destruction of wheat alone has been not only in France but in the Balkans and in Russia.

Hitler, we read, no longer pays much attention to astrologers. Now that he's knee deep in Russia, where winters are something fierce, he'd naturally pay more attention to the weatherman.

With innumerable statesmen pouring back and forth between America and Great Britain, it seems that there's nothing like a submarine menace to stimulate Atlantic travel.

A California prison installs radios in each cell. The idea being, perhaps, that convicts can tune in or news of the outside world and become content with their lot.

Spend an Hour

By MARSHALL MASLIN

It's a grand morning. . . . The sun shines warmly through the clean, washed air. The trees have taken on color. The grass is sweetly green. There's a nip in the breeze, but you know a nip is a nip and the wind knows not, where two walks come together and the sun makes a nice warm pocket.

Go there and sit. . . . There's work to be done but you can do it later. Spend an hour doing nothing.

We speak of "spending an hour." You know it is when you want something very much. It's just what you have been looking for and it is just what you wanted and you have the money to pay for it and you spend that money and know you'll never regret it because you are getting your money's worth.

Well, that's how it is sometimes with time. You can spend time and regret it, waste it, be cheated. Or you can spend it and get your time's worth.

So seek that warm corner and sit. . . . and look. . . . and listen. . . . Sit there and taste this ONE hour, giving no thought to past disappointments or future uncertainties. Hold this one small interval of time in your hands and enjoy it.

A cat comes sleekly by and you admire the lazy grace of the fellow. A bird twitters near and asks you how you are doing. You admire his cheerful audacity. . . . The oak has small green leaves on it. How well proportioned grow his twigs and limbs. . . . Pull a blade of grass and chew its tender yellow end. . . . Get out your knife and whittle a piece of wood. . . . Smoke and watch the faint blue stuff drift and waver and fade against the deeper blue of the sky. . . . Stretch and dream and let the sun soak all through you and enjoy this sunny corner.

Enjoy this morning. Enjoy your laziness, enjoy yourself, just this once. Fill the small cup of the hour to the brim and be content just to BE. . . . Who wants more than this is an ungrateful wretch!

Washington Sure FDR Wants Wallace As His Successor

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

That President Roosevelt seems to have Henry A. Wallace in mind to succeed him at the end of his current term in the White House has been common talk in Washington ever since he forced the latter's vice presidential nomination at the last Democratic national convention.

His recent selection of Henry for the chairmanship of the new American Supply Priorities and Allocation Board is regarded as leaving absolutely no doubt about it.

Next to the presidency itself, his position is rated as, at least nominally, the most important in the country. Most of the actual work will be done by Donald M. Nelson, the board's executive director. However, as chairman, Henry will get most of the limelight, whereas Donald will get all of the bricks-bats. He'll do the practical priority granting and allocating, which will be all right as to concerns that get grants, but certainly will infuriate those that grants are withheld from.

Double Effect

Thus Henry's prestige will be enhanced by the president's designation of him for an exceedingly exalted position and at the same time, Donald will insulate him against the violent dislike of disappointed priority and allocation applicants.

If Henry wins the presidency, he may not be, for very long, a bit grateful to F. D. for having wished him into it. A good many prophets are forecasting that the 1944-48 White House term will be something terrible.

In the first place, the war may still be going on, and we may be in it.

In that event, some say they don't believe F. D. will turn his position over to his present understudy. They think he'll consider it an emergency compelling him to accept another four years of his own in the executive mansion.

If War's Over—

But suppose the fighting's just over. On such a hypothesis, it will be up to our first citizen to take the lead in creating the "better post-war world" that we hear so much about. All hands insist on the vital necessity for it, but nobody's at all specific as to the fashion in which the task can be accomplished.

It's explained that the correct prescription is to give the nations, great and small, each and all, a 100 per cent fair economic and political shake. But how's it to be managed? Are the "have countries" to be called upon to divide up with the "have not" the imagination?

It likewise is insisted that there's got to be disarmament. Ah, but that was tried in the 1920's, and look how it resulted! True, agree that "better worldings," but this time the aggressor powers will have to be disarmed first and so utterly that never again will they be able to peep above a whisper. What power, though, is going to admit that it's chronically aggressive? No answer's heard to that query, either.

Victory Assumed

Of course I'm going on the assumption that the democracies are going to lick the totalitarianism. Any other theory would be intolerable. Okay, say the democracies win. If so, they win with Russia, and is Russia a democracy?

Quite a few prognosticators suggest that these problems will be pretty puzzling to President Wallace—should he get to BE president.

And, right here at home, aren't we due for an awful period of depression when today's conditions pass? Even if we don't get into the war, the war stuff were turning out now will have no post-war economic value. It'll be just as useless as if we'd employed it to shoot with. And what about our taxes, to pay off the biggest debt in the world's history? Inflation also! Can we dodge it?

Outlook Is Glim

You don't have to talk with temperamental pessimists to get gloom rejoinders to these questions. Leon Henderson's as loyal a New Dealer as they make 'em, and he's lying awake nights, trying to think up methods of heading off a post-war depression.

URGES CRIME REMEDY

Bishop Robert B. Gooden, Bishop Gooden of Los Angeles, declares the most effective remedy for juvenile crime is religious training in schools. He says over half of crimes committed in America are by youths 16 to 21.

Every week, every day almost, a new warship for the two-ocean navy splashes down the ways into the water.

It takes sailors to man these ships, and the Navy is now seeking 13,000 a month to go into training so that when the ships are ready the men will be ready.

A navy is more than ships, more than guns. It is men.

The United States never failed to produce such men for Jones and Balbridge, Preble and Decatur; they stepped forward for Porter and Farragut and Dewey; they will not be lacking for Stark and Kimmel and King.

THE MELANCHOLY DAYS ARE COME

Chairmen in Production Need Decisive Authority and Support, Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—There is a reasonable explanation of the confusion arising out of press reports of B. M. Baruch's White House statement, following luncheon with the President, that the new War Industries Board (SPAB) is only a "filtering step" and the president's later statement to the effect that this view did not reflect the discussion at luncheon. The explanation could be that the discussion at luncheon didn't explore details of the new organization at all.

This would seem rather strange in view of the fact that much of the organization did follow Mr. Baruch's idea and specific plan. Yet, strange as it may seem, it is pretty close to the truth.

Plan Secondary

As this column has frequently pointed out, the plan and chart are not half so important as the men and principles which are to govern action. Mr. Baruch himself has said, as has been suggested here also, that Mr. Donald Nelson himself could save the situation if he is given proper authority and support and, it must be added, if he has the stuff on the ball as an administrator and leader.

Has he? I don't know. His reputation in industry and in Sears Roebuck, whence he came, was that, as a second man, he was tops, but that, as a team leader, he left a good deal to be desired. Maybe he has outgrown that. Good men have a way of rising to greater responsibilities to uncover unsuspected strength.

But, right off the bat one thing is clear. He can't possibly become the spark-plug and co-ordinator of that mighty effort and at the same time run the detail of the priorities system. The latter alone is a full time job for a giant. I'm not just guessing. I know because I saw this system working at full stress in World War one. If that point is not recognized and that fault cured at once the whole scheme is kaplopsy. (will collapse)

Embarrassing Question

To those who urge appointment of the "best man in the country" as an absolute one-man czar of all defense mobilization and who do not yet know that there was no such thing in the World War One, a very embarrassing question is "what man?" I have asked and been asked that question frequently. I have never yet heard a satisfactory answer or even, I might add, any answer at all.

The best answer I know is: "for each major head of effort (transportation, ship-building, fuel, food, industry, etc.) one man as chairman of a board but with his decision final. All such chairmen to co-operate on a board or overall war-cabinet with the President's decision final in case of disagreement. That was the plan of World War One. But it depends upon two things.

Two Things Necessary

First, final decision in each great department must really rest in the chairman of its board. Second, each chairman must have the unqualified support of the president. With those two things and that form of organization, almost any good and experienced men can do those jobs. Without those two things no man walks the earth who can do any of those jobs.

The addition of a small industries division, under Mr. Odlum to spread defense contracts to little fellows was a belated but excellent move. Yet this must be said with several qualifications to temper possible wide-spread disappointments. It will delay it, increase its cost, reduce its quality and immobilize greater quantities of scarce materials.

Necessary Step

It had to be done to help preserve the body of our business structure from destruction. But, even on that score, a word of caution is necessary. Defense production is largely in metals and metal working and in chemicals. I doubt if twenty percent of the little fellows in manufacture can take any of it. Unless the priorities policy is changed to withhold a reasonable amount of raw materials for the civilian population, all the rest, including the whole "little business" of retail distribution, are going to be completely folded up or seriously impaired. You can't do that and preserve civilian morale.

The havoc, in immediate prospect, resulting from present unplanned and headlong priority policies, has not been foreseen, dimly realized or provided against by this administration. Neither the Odlum division's organization or its marching orders even remotely recognize this problem.

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly prohibited.)

And Still More Taxes

From the Pittsburgh Press

We might as well get used to the idea of stiff taxation. The taxes which Congress is now laying will be only a taste of what is to come. Consider the figures—

The government now is budgeted to spend twenty-two billion dollars this fiscal year—and is eager to spend much more than that if the tempo of armament production can be speeded up.

With the new tax bill, it will be budgeted to collect eleven billion, 900 million.

So at best, from the fiscal standpoint, we'll be borrowing nearly half of what we spend. And we may be borrowing much more than half.

That's a far cry from Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's goal of financing the government on a two-thirds pay-as-we-go basis through this war period.

Hence more, and heavier, taxes are inevitable.

Most of the expenditures are for weapons of war. The policy of our nation, fixed by the people's elected representatives, is to go the limit in arming ourselves, and in arming Britain, China, Russia and all others who are fighting those we believe to be our potential enemies.

While digging in our pockets to pay as much as we can on that program, the American people have a right to insist that the Administration and Congress wipe out every unnecessary expenditure and enforce rigid economy in even the essential peace-time services.

Government Has A "Hot Potate" In Kearny Plant

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The government has worked itself into such complete inner confusion over the Kearny shipyard settlement that someone will probably have to call Mr. Roosevelt in again to straighten it out.

Root of the trouble is the union president, John Green, thought he was going to get a prize new union pledge—"the maintenance of union contract"—out of the government if it seized the plant. The government cannot now easily deliver and thus commit itself to establishing the same privilege in navy yard unions and other defense plants over the country.

The harrowing details have been spared from public announcement, but practically everyone in the government from the top down through all the labor agencies wishes the whole matter could be forgotten.

"Promise" Misconstrued

Mr. Green's understanding was based on his dealings with the president's defense labor chief, Sidney Hillman, and the Labor Mediation Board, particularly Chairman Davis. Mr. Green naturally thought the "promise" bore the president's approval, especially as the board panel had previously approved the granting of such a privilege by the private company operating the plant. In fact, Mr. Green publicly announced his expectations after the government had taken the plant. As a consequence his wish has been great.

Navy Wants Plant

Just to make the matter about as bad as possible, the Navy department now wants to keep the plant permanently. The United States Steel company publicly announced it was willing to sell. Navy Secretary Knox has been working in that direction, in conference with the company officials.

But as the navy is now operating the plant, the union has no contract whatever. If the navy takes it over permanently, the union suspects it will have lost its prestige and will lose its members also.

The strike settlement which Mr. Hillman and the board had planned would have frozen wages to be paid by United States Steel at the plant for two years. Now without a contract, the union has nothing frozen.

Sidetracking Tried

Mr. Hillman has been working for a solution which would sidetrack the argument deftly but weakly and not without embarrassment. If he and the union could get the government to purchase the plant through the usual RFC loan subterfuge, the cause of direct government management could be avoided and the union could get what it wanted. RFC would merely put up the money and have the plant managed privately as has been done in some other instances. This, the navy would fight.

This did the matter progress from the start—backwards.

Greer Views Differ

The confusing counterclaims of the Greer destroyer incident inspired just as much speculation around Washington as elsewhere, and with as little resulting light. Certain navy men saw the incident as a German desire to strengthen morale at home, to offset Russian failures, a design to strengthen patriotism further against outside influences. They took the view the Germans fired first.

By far the greater number of authorities, however, traced the development back to Navy Secretary Knox's announced decision to drop depth bombs whenever the sonar of a nearby submerged submarine is detected. Such incidents naturally would glow from such a policy as the wonder is not that the report should be conflicting but that such an incident was delayed so long.

Congress Not Alarmed

Congress took the destroyer situation without indicating unusual alarm. Beyond his publishing quotes, Senate Foreign Relations Chairman Tom Connally, for a typical instance, expressed the opinion only that a series of repeated attacks would inspire an open declaration.

Picture Diverts Letters

Since the picture of Bernard Baruch's holding council with friends like Leon Henderson in La Fayette park here was published in magazines, the post office has been receiving letters addressed to him in care of "the bench in the park."

The mail has been sent on to him at the Carlton hotel, where most of his conferences are held.

THE DAILY STORY

CRIB-AGE GAME

Three Years Is Too Long a Time To Wait for a Man
To Pop the Question, Even a Man Like Hal

By MARY DRAKE

"Mildred is worrying herself away to a shadow," Mamma said to Father that Saturday afternoon when he came home from the office. Aunt Mildred had been visiting for three days already. Helene could tell by the way Aunt Mildred looked that she wasn't happy, and if someone only a year old could tell—

"I think it's foolish," Father said, his nice face serious. He patted

"You waited longer than that for me, until I got out of engineering school and wanted a job that would keep us, pet!" Father smiled. Mother frowned at that, because Father always teased her and said

"YOU WAITED LONGER FOR ME."

Mamma on the shoulder softly. "After all, you can appreciate Hal's position about this marriage business. He finally got a job after months and months of idleness, sure. But it isn't what he wants, something good enough to carry family responsibilities just now!" Mamma bit her lip, but she was wise. "Mildred has waited three years for Hal to pop the question," she said, coming over to the crib and smiling at Helene. "She's going on 25, you know. A girl doesn't get younger!"

that she only waited because she didn't expect any other offers, which was naturally foolish.

"That was different," she said with feminine logic. "I know just how poor Mildred feels—and of course mere men wouldn't realize about things like that! But you'd best hurry up, mister!" She pushed him toward the bedroom with a playful shove. Father chuckled.

"Don't give the baby ideas, pet!" he joked. "She'll be learning to shove me around soon enough without your help! And what's all the rush?"

Mamma sighed. "Just a date for 18 holes with the Rogers. Remember?" Father remembered.

"But the baby... I thought you couldn't get a nurse girl to take care of her. Or is this one of your miracles?"

"It's not a miracle, but a coincidence. Hal is coming over to visit Mildred, and I thought that if she stayed here to take care of Helene and get the dinner started, we could sort of save poor Hal the price of dinner. You know what I mean?"

And so little Helene found herself entertaining Aunt Mildred and Hal. Hal was a nice young man, she decided, and one that Aunt Mildred just suited somehow.

He wasn't groovy, for instance—he didn't treat you like a little baby who didn't know anything at all. He stood at the end of the crib and looked at you with a nice smile, but not a pretended smile, close to Aunt Mildred. He talked to you just as though you could answer him about such things as what a nice hair ribbon you had and how did it feel to be such a pretty little lady. Stuff like that, mostly.

"Isn't she the prrfect dear, Hal?" Mildred said finally. "I think it's time for her bottle now. Will you be a sweet and get the formula from the refrigerator and heat it in the enamel saucepan that's standing with the sterilizing equipment on the mixer table in the kitchen?" Hal blushed a little as Aunt Mildred said very calmly. "Then you can set up the folding dressing table and we'll change her before she gets her supper."

"Sure, honey," he told her a bit dubiously, but he went out into the kitchen. When he came back the two of them worked together and changed her and gave her the bottle and afterwards some spinach and potatoes and cereal out of the divided dish. Hal kept looking at Aunt Mildred out of the corner of his eye, but she didn't catch him at it.

"You're handling the little darling like a veteran," Aunt Mildred said after the supper was finished. "I think you've been holding out on me—a talent such as you have denotes experience!" She smiled when she said it so that Hal could see that it was a joke. He laughed, but he didn't say anything clever back to her. He was pleased by the praise.

Back in her crib, Helene looked up with big blue eyes at the two new mentors. They looked victorious.

It made little Helene sad to see them so happy about taking care of her together, but not brave enough to get married so that they could have a baby of their own to take care of. It made her want to cry. She did—uninhibitedly and with vigor.

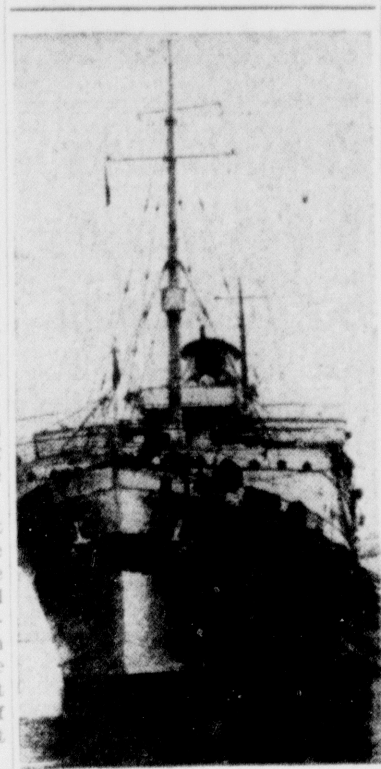

"Is something sticking her?" Hal asked, worried. Aunt Mildred felt all around, but of course there wasn't. "Maybe what she had for supper just now didn't get down properly," he guessed.

"Maybe, but I hardly think that's it," Aunt Mildred replied, her own face getting frowny. Little Helene cried harder. "I'll get the baby book and see."

Together they hunted through the book for a clue to the wailing, their two heads close together. Nothing seemed to be in the book to fit the occasion. Helene wailed afresh.

"Here!" Mildred said determinedly, coming over and picking the baby out of the crib and holding her in her arms. She made cuddly sounds and her face looked pretty, almost as pretty as mother's did when she held you. Hal looked at the two of them like that. He came over close and his arm went around Aunt Mildred.

RISE BUSES & TROLLEY

"If I thought you could bear to manage on a measly $30 a week until I got set," he said, his voice all trembly like. Aunt Mildred looked up, her face shining.

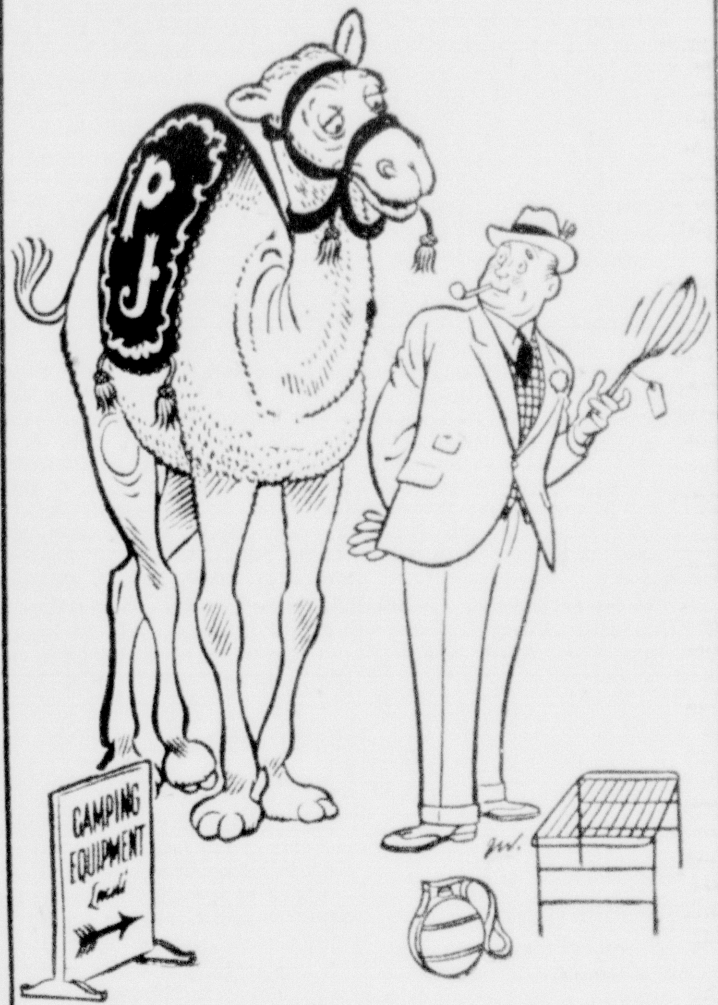

"You never asked me if I thought I could, Hal," she reminded. "And, of course, I never had the chance to say I'd love to!" Little Helene stopped crying.

Neither Aunt Mildred nor Hal were listening. Anyway, how could Aunt Mildred hug Hal if she had a baby in her arms? It just didn't make sense!

Rout of

serves of manpower and industry are great potentialities not only for resistance but also for counter-attacks.

Lozovsky described the whole front as "not continuous, but a zig-zag line."

"The Germans are trying to wedge in," he went on, "and we are trying to wedge their wedge and cut it off."

"Along the entire front there is incessant fighting of unprecedented intensity. This is the reason for the great losses of the Germans and their exhaustion, moral and physical and in equipment."

In the fighting around Odessa he said sixteen Rumanian divisions originally were thrown into the struggle and that now more than half of them already have been shattered.

On the South the Rumanians, to whom the Nazis have left the siege of Odessa, have seen 20,000 of their soldiers slain in ten days in the approaches to that Black sea port, said a Soviet communique.

Pravda, the official Communist party newspaper, gave this account of the battle in the center, as relayed by its front-line correspondent, a novelist named Stavsky:

The Germans reached Yelnya, forty miles East of Smolensk, and 200 miles Southwest of Moscow, in July—a fact hitherto not acknowledged—but were unable to advance a step farther.

They then chose that railway town as the headquarters for their planned march to Moscow, and started bringing up masses of men and materials.

Following a method used so successfully against the Mannerheim line in Finland in 1940, Timoshenko's cannoners started bombarding the Germans with heavy artillery day and night, with never a breathing space.

The Moscow communique said this battle began twenty-six days ago, but Pravda's account indicated there was practically no letup from the moment the Germans reached Yelnya.

Following a pre-arranged plan, it continued, the Red Army went on the offensive suddenly and broke up the Fifteenth German Infantry division and the Tenth Tank division, capturing prisoners and booty.

The whole Yelnya area became a "giant mincing machine" which chopped up German regiments with terrible cannon fire. Still the German command brought up new divisions regularly to replace those battered by the guns.

Finally on Sept. 4, the Russians made certain—how was not stated—besides the two earlier divisions they had smashed the Seventeenth, One Hundred and Thirty-Seventh, One Hundred and Seventy-Eighth, Two Hundred and Sixty-Eighth and Two Hundred and Ninety-Second Infantry divisions and a division of the Elite S.S., pride of Hitler's armies.

The Germans remaining were almost surrounded, having a way out to the West through a narrow neck of land about five miles wide and under constant Soviet fire which had carpeted it with dead Nazis.

On the night of Sept. 4, the Germans pulled out.

"Having left doomed automatic riflemen and mine-thrower crews as a screen, and opening frenzied artillery and mine-thrower fire at our troops constricting the neck," said the Pravda correspondent, "the German troops retreated in panic and disorder."

"It would be truer to call it flight, rather than retreat. In the fields and woods of Yelnya the Germans left unburied tens of thousands of dead men and officers. They managed to carry away an equal number of wounded."

VFW Auxiliary To Give Gold Star Party Sept. 23

CHAPTER FORTY-SIX

AMID ALL the shouting, the traffic confusion and the general horror of the disaster involving Ylena, Ylena's brain was screaming, "I must do something. Oh, God, help me to do something."

As she whirled back into her apartment on legs that felt numb she met Carlyle on her way to the balcony.

"Go to Rose's room and stay there," she said so curtly that the little girl's eyes filled with tears. Hoarsely, Ylena shouted for Tony.

He followed her down to the street and into the turmoil. Miraculously, police had arrived and were fighting back the crowd, as Ylena, face wet with tears, sobbing aloud, crowded her way to a stranger who was holding Davy.

Unconscious, fortunately, he was placed in a car. From then on it was a ghastly dream.

Ylena awoke in the gray-blue dawn, rested from an artificial sleep. Her eyes ached in tired sockets and her mind was clouded. Suddenly she remembered. Wild sobs shook her for many minutes, sobs intensified by her feeling of guilt. Yet she was consoled by that outburst of grief.

The entire populace of La Madera was stunned by the dreadful accident. They talked of nothing but the girl's gallantry. Cool as a cucumber, the workmen related, she had tossed that little boy to safety, otherwise he'd have been killed; he wouldn't have had a chance.

The day after the calamity, in return to Carlyle's persistent questioning, her mother explained briefly that Davy had been in an accident, then sent her, along with Rose and Tony, to San Francisco. "I'll join you after the funeral," she told the two. Remembering Scott's words, she told them, "Pack her in psychological cotton wool."

During all the splendor of the funeral, Ylena could not help wishing that a part of the Cromwell show of devotion to Francis could have been bestowed before her death. What good were flowers, muted songs, a gardenia pillow in her casket and a solid gold name plate to a girl who would have been content with the barest evidence of love during her life with them?

When Ylena joined Carlyle, Rose and Tony, on the west coast, the girl's first thought was: I never want to go back. I never want to see my place again, or that new building, that faithful spot on the pavement.

But in the fall, after those weeks of cool quiet in California, she returned and plunged into work. How can I feel so terribly heartless over the death of a girl I hated?

And then it seeped through her befuddled brain that she hadn't really hated Francis, that her sympathy had warmed her hatred until it no longer was hatred.

Though Davy was bundled and swathed in many casts, he was lively enough to enjoy Carlyle. She spent many hours with him in the hospital and her entire allowance. Also she had a mild graft. "Davy's presents," was written on a card-board and held with an elastic band to a milk bottle which she was very adept at passing at strategic moments.

Diane called at the shop soon after Ylena had returned. Gone was her slightly hateful stiff manner. She collapsed in the arms of her blond friend and gave way to grief intermingled with shame.

"I could have been nicer to her," she choked. "When I think I wouldn't even have Davy now if it hadn't been for her courage. Oh, Ylena, how you must have suffered during those months of waiting for Carlyle. It makes me hate Percy when I think how he mentally abused you."

Ylena looked into her dark friend's face, bitter and cold. "Oh, no, Diane. It doesn't matter now. Don't apologize. Don't put your brow in the dust. I hate that sort of thing."

Diane dabbed the tears away and looked into a compact mirror. "I wonder if I'll ever look like anything again." Gloomily she shuddered, and snapped the lock. "Ylena, she queried abruptly, with a piercing look, 'will you go see Tate?'"

Ylena shrank. "No! Don't ask anything like that!"—she bit her lip. "What do you mean, go see him? Where is he?"

"He's in the same hospital as Davy. Oh, Ylena, please, please forgive and go see him. He's so miserable. I'm worried about him. Promise me you'll go see him."

The blond girl's response was dull. "All right."

After her unhappy guest left, Ylena sat alone in her room. Here I am as burdened with the sudden sorrows of the Cromwells as if I were a Cromwell myself, she thought. Her eyes flashed to their widest extent. But I could be now! That fact dawned on her with a force, terrific and incredibly sweet.

An hour later she was beside Tate Cromwell's bed, beautiful in a black velvet suit and the still lovely cape he had given her that happy Christmas. She sank to the chair and said, "Hello, Tate." What she wanted to say was, "Hello, darling." Over and over to relieve the splitting ache that had injured her heart. Oh, it was sinful to care for someone as she cared for Tate. It was an abominable ailment, uncontrollable, like a creeping disease. There was something sinister about it. If only she could find a cure—and then, looking down into his handsome face, meeting the message in his deep blue eyes, she realized she did not want a cure. Not now. Oh, not now! She closed her eyes and bent to his lips.

They were soft and cold. He kissed her as a forgiven little boy would. He was crying. Gently, he stretched an arm toward her shoulders and drew her to him. His lips, that had been salty and childish, changed right on her mouth to that well-known mastery.

He lifted them to breathe. "I'll never hurt you again. Never!"

"Carlyle?" she whispered when he released her. "What about Carlyle?"

"I'll adore her, of course."

But would he? Ylena wondered afterward, in the serenity of her home. Looking at Carlyle, aristocratic beauty, her mother thought, "How could anyone help loving her?" Yet Theodore Vincent had. He had hated his own child, even before she was born, and only the fear of his mother had made him give her even the most meager attention.

Even with those fears crowding her, she could not resist Tate, and as the days went on she made daily trips to the hospital and later, as he grew better, to the Cromwell house, to visit with him.

Terrence Alkire was bitter in his denunciation, and finally left La Madera for Santa Barbara. "When you've finished with this foolishness, let me know. I won't stick around and watch you be a fool again."

On the first Sunday that Tate was well enough to be up, he came to see Ylena. Tony, scrupulously attired in a double-breasted suit of gray wool, met him at the door, then left. Rose moved about quietly, picking up toys, smoothing pillows, emptying ashtrays, and left also. After a few courteous words Carlyle left also, with the funny papers under her arm.

As time rushed on, and Ylena's caller remained, the little girl returned, very absorbed in pulling on white gloves. That task completed, she lifted a candid blue-green gaze that excluded Tate.

"Church, Mamamia?" she said with pointed emphasis.

"I'm not going," she started then. Catching the wounded look on her small daughter's face, she amended, "I'll get my hat." She turned to Tate. "Come with us."

A shudder shook him. "I can't. It makes me think of Francis. She was always running to church."

"That was good for her—" she left off suddenly, then said, "Tate, I believe you loved Francis."

"No," he frankly admitted. "I didn't. Ylena. It's just a hideous sensation that comes over me when I realize how many times I wished she was out of the way, and then when she was, I—" He choked and could not go on.

Ylena extended her hand to him. He swept her into his arms and held her there, even though she struggled to be free, unable to bear the look of hurt amazement in Carlyle's eyes. Somehow she must beat down that faint, indescribable barrier.

She had dinner with Tate that evening and had been in her room a very short time when Rose came to tell her Scott Hamilton was there.

Without a previous remark he asked, "Have you been out with Cromwell?" She admitted it with a nod. "Then I'm leaving—for good, if that means anything to you."

Her breath left her. "But, Scott—Scott," she repeated as he started out of the room, "I can't do without you."

"That's right, Ylena. You can't, but you don't know it yet. So you're going to do without me, until you really learn that you can't do without me. Goodbye, Ylena."

Hybrid Corn More Popular in State

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 9 (AP)—Hybrid corn has found much popularity among Maryland farmers that its production zoomed from 15,000 to 165,000 acres in three years. At present, more than one-third of the corn growing in Maryland is hybrid corn, said Albin O. Kuhn, assistant specialist in agronomy for the University of Maryland extension service.

In 1939, he said, only three per cent of the total acreage in the state, or 15,000 acres, was planted to the hybrid or cross-bred corn. The next year it was 50,000 acres, with a more than three-fold increase this last season.

Its advantages over the local open-pollinated varieties, Kuhn said, are: It stands up better, allowing use of harvesting machinery; it has consistently yielded about ten per cent higher in tests than local varieties of open-pollinated corn, and good hybrids have "an inherent ability to withstand drought and keep growing under the most adverse conditions."

Armament production has greatly increased world demand for special steels, according to the department of commerce.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT DOES IT MEAN? IF YOU are going to use such a device as the Blackwood convention, it is well for you and your partner to be certain of when the 4-No Trumps call is a Blackwood slam signal and when it is not. Of course, if the bidding between you goes 1-Spade, 2-Hearts, 3-Diamonds, 4-Clubs, a call of 4-No Trumps is nothing but an effort to play at that contract. But vary the sequence a bit, with no definite suit fit shown or guaranteed by an early jump, and you have good grounds for costly misunderstanding.

Expectant Mother Should Plan Her Own Diet after Few Instructions

LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
One of my obstetrical friends feels that prospective mothers have a great deal of intelligence, enough to plan their own diets. He does not believe in the custom which is becoming prevalent of giving expectant mothers courses of vitamins and mineral salts for this. (He might make an exception in the case of a woman who is used to prevent hemorrhage of the new-born.)

His plan is to ask the woman to plan her own diet after a little study of what a balanced diet should be. He instructs her to be sure to get the protective foods, particularly milk and green vegetables and fruits, in the diet. Then he asks her to make a list of a diet that she eats for a week and this is brought in to him for supervision.

Gives Sample Diet List
He has kindly furnished me with a sample diet list that was made up and brought in by an expectant mother in the routine course of seeing such patients. He and I both agree that it could not be improved on by the best dietitian in the world. For the benefit of others, here it is:

Monday: breakfast: grapefruit, cereal flakes, toast, marmalade, milk. Lunch: milk. Supper: french toast, bacon, egg, milk.
Tuesday: breakfast: grapefruit, cereal flakes, toast, marmalade, milk. Lunch: milk. Supper: roast veal, carrots, lettuce salad, celery, bread, rhubarb sauce, cake, milk.
Wednesday: breakfast: orange, cereal flakes, toast, jam, milk, sweet roll. Lunch: deviled egg, sandwich, lettuce, cookie, milk. Supper: lamb chop, cauliflower, lettuce salad, pineapple, milk.

dry cereal, toast, jam, milk. Lunch: spinach, beets, beans, cottage cheese, rye bread, milk. Supper: creamed veal, peas, carrots, bread, jam, banana salad, tea, cake, milk.

Thursday: breakfast: orange, cereal flakes, toast, jam, milk, sweet roll. Lunch: deviled egg, sandwich, lettuce, cookie, milk. Supper: lamb chop, cauliflower, lettuce salad, pineapple, milk.

Friday: breakfast: grapefruit, cereal flakes, toast, jam, milk. Lunch: milk. Supper: chicken legs, creamed peas, potatoes, carrots, celery, radishes, fruit Jello salad, coconut cake, milk. Between meals drink milk.

Saturday: breakfast: orange, puffed wheat, toast, jam, milk. Lunch: egg, lettuce, bread, milk. Supper: chicken legs, creamed peas, potatoes, gelatin fruit salad, celery, coconut cake, milk.

Candy between meals
Sunday: breakfast: grapefruit, puffed wheat, bacon, egg, toast, doughnut, milk. Lunch: sweet roll, milk. Supper: chicken leg, lettuce, cheese, egg, potatoes, celery, strawberries, cake. Between meals—candy.

Monday: breakfast: grapefruit, cereal flakes, toast, jam, milk. Lunch: milk. Supper: cube steak, browned gravy, carrots, green beans, lettuce-celery salad, strawberries, cake. Between meals—candy.
Tuesday: breakfast: orange, puffed wheat, toast, jam, milk. Lunch: egg, lettuce, bread, milk. Supper: chicken legs, creamed peas, potatoes, gelatin fruit salad, celery, coconut cake, milk.

ed wheat, toast, marmalade, milk. Lunch: ham sandwich, egg, lettuce, milk. Supper: Italian spaghetti, lettuce, celery, milk, bread, fruit Jello, brownie.

Wednesday: breakfast: grapefruit, shredded wheat, toast, marmalade, milk. Lunch: Swiss steak, carrots, pineapple, cottage cheese salad, roll, chop, ice cream, cake. Supper: pork chop, green beans, carrots, cabbage salad, roll, tea, rhubarb sauce, milk. Between meals have both milk and candy.

Questions and Answers
R. C.:—"What can be done for a child with funnel chest caused by rickets?"

Answer—Nothing can be done to help the deformity, but in my experience it never does any harm.

The first grant of land to aid in the construction of a railroad was the act of congress of Sept. 20, 1850, to the state of Illinois.

Thomas E. Jones New Secretary of State

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 9. (AP)—Thomas Elmo Jones, 34-year-old Prince George's county contractor and Democratic member of the House of Delegates, has become secretary of state, succeeding the late Miles T. Tull, of Marion Station.

The gubernatorial appointee, sworn in this morning by Governor O'Connor, immediately went to work, signing numerous commissions issued by the governor.

Jones, a resident of Fairfield, is the fourth secretary of state to serve under O'Connor. His predecessor was John B. Gontum, now state insurance commissioner; Francis Petrott, now acting adjutant general; and Tull, who drowned recently on the Eastern Shore.

Jones, who has been a resident of Prince George's county twenty-two years, was district manager for the federal census in the fifth congressional district, supervising the work of more than 200 census employees.

Men Can Enlist In Navy Reserve With High Rates

Those with Qualifications Can Secure Petty Officer Ranking

Men with special aptitude and training in various trades and seamanship can now enlist in the United States Navy reserve as chief petty officers, petty officers and first class officers, even if they have had no previous naval experience. George Carroll, chief signalman mate in charge of the local recruiting station announced yesterday.

In order that the high standards of efficiency and knowledge required of petty officers in the Navy may be maintained, and that promotion of deserving men now in the service may not be blocked, it is necessary that only those men without previous service experience and whose outstanding be enlisted at the higher rating.

Among the ratings which may be filled by those qualified are boatswain's mate, second class; gunner's mate, second class; torpedoman, third class; quartermaster, third class; signalman, third class; radio-man, first class; fire controlman, second class; electrician's mate, second class.

Carpenter's mate, third class; shipfitter, second class; patternmaker, first class; machinist's mate, second class; boilermaker, first class; metalmith, first class; yeoman, second class; storekeeper, second class; pharmacist's mate, first class; musician, second class; bugler, first class; ship's cook, second class; baker, second class; mess attendant, first class; aerographer, second class; photographer, third class; aviation machinist's mate first class and aviation metalmith, second class.

For information concerning these higher ratings in the Naval Reserve, contact Officer Carroll, at the post office building, this city.

Developed Privately

The Monongahela Valley "tourists" are from a region of 2,400 square miles and about 350,000 population, a section once studied by a committee appointed by President Roosevelt with a thought of perhaps making it a miniature "Tennessee Valley" project. But private initiative was given a hand to develop the unlimited natural resources including coal, oil, gas, glass sand, building sand, etc., to promote the recreational advantages, and to improve the agricultural conditions.

The Upper Monongahela Valley Association was established in 1935 to direct this work of development and improvement and has been instrumental in formulating and carrying out many programs since that time. It has aided in establishing ten new factories, has assisted already existing firms, has sponsored roadside beautification, promoted tourist facilities and recreational spots, helped to improve agriculture, and carried on other activities designed to raise the social and economic levels of the people residing there. Its leaders say its programs are long-range; its plan, merely to bring more benefits to the territory it serves.

Sizes of men's and women's hose are determined by length of the feet; size eight is eight inches from toe to end of heel, and each larger size is half an inch longer.

Formulation

reconditioning of street corners and a new traffic lighting plan were enumerated among the things being considered by the city that could aid in an improvement program. But the mayor declared that the finest scheme yet proposed is that worked out by Abel Wollman, Baltimore engineering consultant, on the basis of studies made by United States Army engineers and the local Flood Control committee, which would provide for a covered tube plan for Wills creek. But for minor steps he believed halving of the parking spaces along one-way streets to be the best.

Benjamin M. Kamens referred to the utilization of federal grade crossing funds with the half million dollar bond issue authorization for an overhead bridge plan, but Mayor Irvine reminded him that the crossing allocation proposals—$96,000 by the B. and O. and $110,000 by the Western Maryland—would not be available for sometime to come, all such grade crossing funds having been allocated up until 1944.

Edmund S. Burke expressed the belief that the main traffic solution lies in moving the traffic through the downtown streets and lessening the parking spaces. The thing to do, he declared, is to keep the traffic moving.

Orr Discusses Plans
Commissioner Orr discussed plans in hand for making a three-lane traffic in South Centre street to Baltimore street and reversing the traffic in Pershing street; and of widening Bedford street. Many such plans, he explained, called for expenditures and his department doesn't know where to get the money. Right now it is trying to wrangle funds for needed improvements at the Central fire station.

C. E. Howell, of the Junior Association of Commerce, suggested a reduction of parking in central streets and the elimination of left-hand turns in Baltimore street. His group believed a twenty-percent improvement in congestion could be obtained from changes that would keep traffic open and moving.

Ralph L. Rizer, the city engineer, suggested a reduction of the yellow flash periods in the Baltimore street traffic light system. He also gave some attention to a plan long advocated by him for an overhead crossing at the B. and O. railroad tracks on Baltimore street.

That brought a further suggestion from Howell that subways be constructed for pedestrians at the Baltimore street intersections.

Suggests Synchronization
Synchronization of Baltimore street traffic lights to permit car drivers to make its entire distance was suggested by Perry A. Nicklin, declared this impracticable so long as the street is blocked by freight trains. He declared improvement possible if the traffic lights were eliminated in the street.

Earl D. Chaney advocated elimination of left hand turns in Baltimore street, no parking there between Mechanic and George streets, and four-lane traffic along the route, with two-way traffic in George street.

City officials attending the conference included Mayor Irvine, James Orr, police and fire commissioner, William J. Edwards, water

Others Attending
Others in attendance, including directors of the Traffic committee of the chamber of commerce, members of the board of directors, representatives of the Junior Association of Commerce and Harold W. Smith, senior chamber secretary, were James A. Avirett, F. H. Ankeney, J. Glenn Beall, Edmund S. Burke, Douglas B. Bowie, William Claus, Earl D. Chaney, William L. Geppert, Thomas E. Gilchrist, C. E. Howell, Benjamin W. Kamens, Charles L. Kopp, John D. Liebau, P. E. Myers, Perry A. Nicklin, Henry W. Price, Charles A. Piper, John F. Rodman, John J. Robinson, James Rinehart, W. Donald Smith, Roy W. Eves and Charles A. Richards.

The will of Alonzo M. Norman named his wife, Mrs. Jennie Norman, sole beneficiary and executrix.

Under the will of Mrs. Lyla Smith, her daughter, Mrs. Nellie M. Kammauf, was named trustee to administer the estate on behalf of the testator's husband, Thomas Smith.

Mrs. Clara Walsh Seaver was named beneficiary under the will of her husband, Peter J. Seaver, with William C. Walsh, a nephew, named executor to act jointly with Mrs. Seaver. Provision was made in the will for masses at St. Patrick's and SS. Peter and Paul churches.

Two Equity Suits Filed in Court
Two suits were placed on the equity docket yesterday, but their nature was not learned, the papers having been removed from the files.

Alvin S. Boor is named defendant in a suit brought by Leona Miller Boor through Julius E. Schindler, attorney.

The other suit was brought by Evelyn Elizabeth Statler against Edgar Delerine Statler through Albert A. Doub, Jr., attorney.

The truckers struck Sunday night, with about 400 men involved in the three-day area.

Strike of

$26.40 weekly for drivers and $22.56 for helpers, this also being a guaranteed rate.

In Winchester, Stutzman reported, the city rate was increased to seven and one-half cents an hour, while an upward revision of inter-urban trip rates will mean an average increase of from $4 to $6.

Although the Cumberland Motor Express Corporation has agreed to substantially the same scale as other operators here, Stutzman said the hold-up was due to a dispute over an inter-urban trip which other Cumberland firms do not make.

The truckers struck Sunday night, with about 400 men involved in the three-day area.

Low Bid for Painting Three Bridges in This Section Is Submitted

A low bid of $7,023 by the M. G. Mostes company, Pittsburgh, Pa., for the painting of bridges in this section was submitted yesterday by the State Roads Commission.

Included among the structures to be painted in this area are the Blue Bridge, between this city and Ridgeley, W. Va.; the bridge over the B. & O. railroad tracks, Henderson avenue; a bridge over the Potomac river between the Uhl highway and Paw Paw, W. Va.

Only one bid, that of a Philadelphia, Pa. firm, was received for construction of the sub-structure of the Shady Hook bridge across the Potomac river. The firm asked $270,625 for thirteen piers and two abutments of the 2,230-foot span. The old structure was washed out in the 1936 flood. Bids for the steel work will be asked shortly. W. C. Hopkins, chief engineer of the commission, announced.

Legion Members See Army Pictures; Plan For Bowling Season

Members of Fort Cumberland Post No. 12, American Legion, saw three reels of motion pictures on "Army Life" last night at the semi-monthly meeting of the post at the Legion home, Harrison street.

The pictures were shown by Sgt. Clarence Blehn, local United States Army recruiting officer.

Fifty-seven members attended the meeting at which John R. Kelly, commander, presided.

It was announced that the American Legion Mixed Bowling League of thirty members and six teams will open its season Monday, September 15, at 7:30 p. m., on the Savoy alleys, Baltimore street. Lester Underdonk is chairman for the men and Mrs. Ada Long, auxiliary president, is chairman of the women's bowling committee.

Ridgeley Lions' Club Plans "Ladies' Night" Dinner Dance Sept. 16

Invitations have been sent to Lions clubs in Cumberland, Romney, Moorefield, Keyser and the Tri-Towns.

J. Leo Dougherty is chairman of the committee on arrangements and is being assisted by George Edenhart and William Coffman.

Japanese Beetles Caught Here Total 100,000

The number of Japanese beetles trapped in Allegany county this year is expected to be somewhat in excess of last year, according to County Farm Agent Ralph P. McHenry.

McHenry said that NYA youths checking the results of the trapping program had counted 60,000 to date, with indications that the total will be about 100,000. This compares with approximately 90,000 trapped last year.

McHenry added that the expected increase was not alarming, indicating, on the contrary, that the pest is being largely held in check.

Child Is Injured In Fall from Bed

Edith Trezise, four-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mildred Trezise, 241 Columbia avenue, was treated last night at Allegany hospital for a lacerated forehead, suffered in a fall from a bed at her home. She was released after receiving treatment.

Fire Prevention Plans For Court House, Jail Are Studied by Board

The board of county commissioners took under advisement yesterday morning the matter of providing fire protection for the county jail and furnishing additional protection for the court house.

John B. Wittaker, of the Fire Prevention Service Company, presented three plans for providing fire extinguishers for the buildings ranging in cost from $196.67 to $252.34.

The most expensive plan calls for nineteen fire extinguishers in the court house and four in the jail, while the cheapest provides fourteen in the court house and four in the jail.

The commissioners said they would study the proposals and make a decision at Friday's meeting.

Longer Life Is Seen For Americans

Intellectual Conquest Will Increase Longevity, Doctor Says

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. Sept. 9 (AP)—Belief that a new intellectual age may now be dawning was expressed before the American Chemical Society today by Dr. Edward G. Stieglitz of Washington, D. C., an authority on longevity.

Dr. Stieglitz told the society that if this "period of intellectual conquest" materializes, as he expects, humans will live longer than their present average of sixty-three years—and keep their mental faculties strong until the end.

At the same time Prof. Henry C. Sherman of Columbia university reported that rats in his laboratory lived longer, healthier lives than normal, with old age postponed, when fed a diet rich in fresh fruits, vegetables and milk.

Specifically, he attributed the long youthfulness of these rats to the calcium and vitamins A, C and B2. He found that giving rats three or four times the amount of calcium usually considered sufficient it accelerates their rate of development.

maintained a higher level of adult vitality with an extended prime of life, and increased life expectancy. Dr. Stieglitz reasoned a new intellectual age might be dawning because the average age of the population is rising, and as men grow older experience accumulates and they continue to grow, intellectually, provided their physical and mental well-being are maintained.

through the development of new tactics British and Allied shipping lost in July and August amounted to scarcely more than one-third the tonnage of the Axis losses, despite the fact that British shipping offers ten to twenty times the number of targets.

End Not in Sight

Still, he said, the end was not in sight, adding:

"The Germans are much hampered on the American part of the Atlantic by fear of trouble with the powerful American naval forces which ceaselessly patrol the approaches to the Western Hemisphere. This has been a help to us but I could wish it might be a greater help."

"The enemy's tactics may change. No doubt Hitler would rather finish off Russia and Britain before coming to close quarters with the United States. "Hitler has, however, also the great possible need to prevent precious munitions supplies, now streaming across the Atlantic in pursuance of the policy of the United States government, from reaching our shores."

Should he do so, the area of danger zones will again become ocean-wide. Meanwhile, let us not vainly talk of the battle of the Atlantic having been won."

The Atlantic meeting with President Roosevelt, he said, resulted not alone in the familiar eight points but in agreements for British-American measures in aid of Russia and on a policy intended to "put a stop to further encroachments (by Japan) in the Far East."

Survivor Says

airplane engine roar and saw a brown streak flash overhead. "The plane must have cut off its engines, dived and then turned them on again as the bombs were dropped."

Ralph S. Pratt of New York city, the tall, grey-haired first mate, said the Seafarer was sunk by a bomb or aerial torpedo which hit beneath the waterline. She sank within twenty minutes, Pratt said. All crewmen were able to get off in boats before the ship went down.

"I was asleep below when the ship was hit," Pratt said. "A sound something the crack of a rifle woke me up. A second later a very heavy explosion threw me out of my bunk. The washstand came out. Everything was topsy-turvy."

"I got one shoe on and couldn't find the other. I grabbed a slipper and rushed up on deck. While the crew was taking to the boats, I will say this for the German, he didn't machine-gun us afterwards as some of them have done." (The identification of the attacker was "German" was not amplified.)

Ship Sinks Quickly

"Capt. John Halliday of Baltimore was on the bridge with the third officer. He sounded the alarm immediately and the crew rushed to the decks, some of them in pajamas, some in nightshirts and some in shorts," Pratt went on.

"There wasn't much time. The bomb or torpedo had plugged a hole under No. 4 hatch and we were beginning to sink fast. "We got the first men up into two boats, launched them all right, then packed the remainder into a third."

"I remained aboard until the last with the captain and the first mate to see if there was a chance of saving her, but it was clear that nothing could be done. We pulled away and three minutes later her decks were awash."

From the statements of the various members of the crew, the question of whether the pilot of the plane was able to distinguish the Seafarer as an American vessel appeared to be a moot point.

There was brilliant moonlight, but it was doubtful that the attacker could make out the stars and stripes painted on the vessel's sides

Five Axis Ships Are Sunk by RAF And Naval Forces

Locomotive Works in Kassel, Germany, Heavily Bombed by 100 Planes

LONDON, Sept. 9 (AP)—British naval and aerial raiders reported tonight they had sunk five Axis ships, probably destroyed three more, damaged others, and pounded the locomotive works of the German city of Kassel in attacks stretching from the Arctic to Bengasi in the Mediterranean.

Four of the ships reported sunk were German, one Italian.

The four were a destroyer, an unidentified vessel, an armed trawler sunk by "light forces" operating under Rear Admiral P. L. Vian, D. S. O., against German convoys supplying troops on the Murmansk front against Russia, and a 4,000-ton German supply ship torpedoed in a "strongly escorted" convoy in the English channel. The admiralty said a British submarine sank a large Italian schooner in the central Mediterranean.

In the Arctic battle, the German warship Bremse, 1,460 tons, also was listed as probably sunk. The Germans already had acknowledged the loss of this ship, which they classed as an artillery cadet craft. The London admiralty called it a light cruiser.

Still other ships were reported damaged in the battle. Norwegian patrols joined the British in a running fight in the English channel which accounted for the sinking of one supply ship and the probable sinking of another, and a German motor torpedo boat. An armed trawler was also reported set afire in the English channel action.

Nearly 100 RAF planes pounded the locomotive workshops of Kassel. The air ministry said most of the lanes got through to blast their targets and that Germany's heightened need for railway transportation for the Russian campaign gave the raid importance.

State Allocates Fund for Defense

ANNAPOLIS, Md. Sept. 9 (AP)—Maryland's Board of Public Works today allocated $5,500 for the operation of state defense agencies from now until January 1.

Actually, the defense agencies will have a total of $7,500 to spend during the period, since only $3,000 of $5,000 allotted them by the board June 1 has been expended.

The last legislature provided $100,000 in a bond issue for the maintenance of the state home guard and the defense agencies during a two-year period.

Governor O'Connor and other public works board members urged defense agencies to keep their expenses as low as possible. Board members decided to allocate a lump sum to the State Council of defense and let it deal out funds to the subsidiary groups.

Besides the state-wide defense council, the other defense agencies are the women's division, under the leadership of Mrs. John L. Whitehurst; two state fire co-ordinators, Dr. J. W. Just, of the University of Maryland Fire Extension Service, and John McNulty; the fair rent committee and the Baltimore District Council of Defense.

The fire co-ordinators requested funds so that representatives may instruct volunteer fire companies in the counties in such subjects as war gases.

American Recruit

begged for a plane to bomb the submarine that took the life of his four companions.

"Boy," he said, sticking out his jaw, "I saw those fellows die. I want to do something about them."

The survivors reached a British port Friday, and their names were made public the following day, but few details of the torpedoing became known to the public until Jordan told his story tonight. Here it is:

Story of Sub Attack

"We realized one morning that we were being trailed by a submarine. That didn't worry us much, but later in the day our engine broke down. We worked on it—all eleven American boys—for sixteen hours.

"The broken engine reduced our speed from sixteen knots to seven. That's a hell of a feeling when you know a submarine is after you. Anyway, we chugged along zig-zagging and twisting for another day."

"The next day there was a fog and the first thing we knew out of this fog came a plane. It machine-gunned us, turned a cannon on us and dropped a bomb or two. The bomb didn't hit us but the machine-gun and the cannon surely knocked us about."

"Along about dusk subs closed in on us. We could even see their periscopes. They would come up, then duck down and then come up again."

"I saw one very close. I ran and got the captain, and just then there was an awful bang and a mess of black smoke and spray. We were hit all right, and began listing to port."

"We were so badly hit that we couldn't stop our engine. She just kept going round and round. The machineguns and the cannon had banged up both our lifeboats so we began throwing off rafts."

"I threw one off and then slid down the side of the ship after it. I got caught in a flock of ropes and swung out from the side of the boat. Then I swung back and bounced off the boat. I reckon that saved my life."

Propeller Cuts Men to Pieces

"The others did the same thing. The listing boat began chasing us. I saw the ship's propeller cut into a bunch of them and about twenty fellows including seamen got chopped. "All this time the ship's whistle was screaming. I never knew there could be such a horrible noise in my life. And I never knew that men's screams could be heard above the whistle's scream. But they were. Later, I'm afraid, their screaming stopped."

A Polish warship picked up the survivors. Thirty-seven of the ship's crew and passengers were lost.

Ickes' Proposal

Conn) of the Senate committee investigating the eastern petroleum situation contended that the "oil shortage is over."

"Instead of a shortage of 174,000 barrels of petroleum products, we seem to have a surplus of some 80,000 barrels based on testimony and evidence before this committee," Maloney observed, Davies was a witness before the committee.

If the line is built of steel tubes, the board decided, the tubes can be supplied at a sufficiently slow rate so as not to interfere with the manufacture of bomb casings.

Unofficially it was estimated that the line could be built of steel tubes by mid-summer of 1943. Under Ickes' proposal it would have been completed next spring.

The line, about 1,500 miles long, would have extended from east Texas to Salem, Ill., and then on to the Bayonne, N. J., area.

Captain's Wife Predicted Ship Would Be Lost

Mrs. Ellen Halliday Tells Story at Her Home in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Sept. 9 (AP)—Mrs. Ellen Halliday, wife of Captain John D. Halliday of the sunken Steel Seafarer, predicted disaster for the freighter before it sailed.

She told the story at her home today after being notified by officials her husband and his crew had been saved and would be returned to the United States as soon as possible, probably aboard a British vessel.

"My husband and I were drinking tea shortly before he left for New York to take command of the Steel Seafarer for the trip to Suez. I have a hobby of reading tea leaves, as he well knew. He said:

"What do you see for me on this trip?"

"I studied the tea leaves and then I told him:

"You'll never complete this trip. You'll never even get halfway."

Mrs. Halliday, who has lived in Baltimore for fifteen years with their son William, now sixteen, said her husband, a native of Glasgow, ran away to sea and eventually came to the United States.

His first command, she said, was the Steamer Craster Hail on whose decks William learned to walk.

During the World War Capt. Halliday—he has the ranking of lieutenant commander in the Navy—was second officer of the City of Mobile, another Isthmian line ship, when she was blown up off the Azores in June, 1918.

Adrift in a small boat, Capt. Halliday wrote an appeal for help, placed it in a naval emergency water bottle and tossed it overboard. The bottle, its message still legible, washed ashore thirteen years later at Daytona Beach, Fla.

Witness Discloses

Sebold said agents in Germany had boasted that they possessed the treasure trove of bombsight, which is believed to be accurate from a 30,000-foot elevation.

Tells of Travels

In a slow, heavy-accented voice, Sebold told of his travels after the war, the end of which left him for three months in a German hospital.

He said he went to sea and jumped ship in Galveston, Texas. After working several months in Texas, he returned to Germany with $150—enough to set him up in a successful bicycle business, which saved his parents from the full force of the disastrous inflation period.

Again he left Germany—this time for South America, and eventually immigrated to the United States.

JAP PRESS SOFTENS CRITICAL ATTITUDE

TOKYO, Wednesday, Sept. 10 (AP)—The Japanese press has softened to a mere murmur its recent vigorously critical attitude toward foreign policy moves by the United States.

While there is no official reaction, it is evident also that concerning among the Japanese over the current situation in the Russo-German war is increasing.

The press now plays constantly upon the theme that the war was a long one for Germany, in sharp contrast to optimism expressed in the early stages of the conflict.

Another significant phase of American-Japanese relations is the United States embassy here toward negotiations for ships to remove nationals, such as those by the British and Japanese governments.

American-Owned

Iceland supplies of a general character destined for and owned by the Icelandic government. She sailed from New York August 7 and was due in Iceland about twelve days later. The Steel Seafarer was presumably carrying war supplies to the British, one of numerous vessels assigned to that duty by the maritime commission. The maritime commission reported today that the Seafarer was bombed at 11:30 p. m. last Friday.

SURPRISE GAS ATTACK
USED ON GUARDSMEN

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 9.—A gas grenade was exploded without warning today in the midst of nearly fifty Maryland State Guard officers while they were in a weapons lecture.

The officers here for an intensive three-day refresher course, grabbed the gas masks they had been carrying since their arrival early yesterday. All succeeded in donning the masks in the split-minute before the fumes could take effect.

At the outset of the course the new officers were told that sometime during the three days they would be gassed without warning. After the test today it was explained the gas used was tear gas.

During the course, which concludes at a luncheon tomorrow given by the officers to their University ROTC instructors, the guardsmen have covered thoroughly the new infantry drill and regulations. Much time has been spent on theory and tactics of internal situations for which the guard might be called to duty.

Stressed are prevention of sabotage, guarding of vital points in water and power supply systems, prevention of looting after floods and other disasters, and methods of breaking up illegal or seditious gatherings and riots.

Meat Instruction To Be Feature of Cooking School

Lecturer Is a Member of National Live Stock and Meat Board

Miss Loren Jacobson, who conducts the Better Meals Cooking School to be presented by the Times-News on Sept. 16-19 at the Strand Theatre, is a member of the National Live Stock and Meat Board. This organization represents all branches of the live stock and meat industry, including producers, packers and retailers. Its purpose is to assist the industry and benefit the public through a program of research and education concerning the selection, proper methods of cooking and the place of meat in the well-balanced diet.

The newer, easier methods in meat cooking now recommended are the result of experimental work in this field, carried on in the home economics department of leading colleges and universities and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Through the Co-operative Meat Investigations project, sponsored by the National Live Stock and Meat Board, Through cooking schools, lectures, radio talks and numerous newspaper and magazine articles, these improved methods of cooking all cuts of beef, pork, lamb and veal have been brought to the attention of homemakers.

Work Based On Research

The nutritional importance of meat has also been the subject of research sponsored by this organization. One of the first of these studies was that made at the University of Rochester, Rochester, N. Y., by Dr. George Whipple, through which it was found that meat had very special value in blood regeneration. This work led to the outstanding discovery for which Dr. Whipple and Dr. George R. Minot received the Nobel prize in medicine in 1934, the discovery of the value of liver in the treatment of pernicious anemia.

Another experiment sponsored by the Board showed the value of meat in the diet of children, especially in preventing and curing nutritional anemia.

Meat in the weight-reducing diet was the subject of a series of experiments carried on by Dr. Leon Campbell at Rush Medical College in Chicago which have resulted in the popular high-protein reducing diets based upon meat.

Rich Source of Natural B. Vitamins

The most recent discovery regarding the nutritional value of meat was the result of work by Dr. C. A. Elvehjem of the University of Wisconsin in vitamin research. He found that meat is the richest known natural source of the important B group of vitamins, thiamine, riboflavin and nicotinic acid, need for which is being stressed by the nutrition authorities of the national defense council.

The need for more information about all foods has been emphasized in the national program for better nutrition for the civilian population as well as the armed forces. In this connection the work of the National Live Stock and Meat Board has taken on even greater importance.

Authentic Information

This authentic information about meat and the food which accompany it to form a well-balanced diet is set forth clearly and interestingly in the Better Meals Cooking School, as Miss Jacobson explains and demonstrates the right way to plan meals and to prepare and serve them.

"Pattern" menus to help a woman in her own meal planning, are an interesting and valuable part of the recipe booklets given at the cooking school. Another feature consists of menu suggestions. Dishes prepared on the program are used in these menus.

Deadline for Entering J.A.C. Event Moved Back to Friday

The deadline for all clubs—local and out-of-town—to enter the Junior Association of Commerce inter-state softball tournament has been moved back to Friday night at 8:30 when the draw will be made at the Central Y.M.C.A. It was announced last night by James Wilkinson, chairman of the J.A.C. athletic committee.

Wilkinson pointed out that interest in the tourney, which the J.A.C. hopes to make an annual affair, has been lagging with only four clubs ready for action. Wilkinson said that unless tight teams file before the Friday deadline, plans for staging the tournament will be abandoned.

The North End Social and Athletic club, the Wilkinson Grocers, the Potomac Valley Club and the Junior Association of Commerce, ten are sure starters while the Ludwig Grocers of Keyser has shown interest. Wilkinson hopes to interest other City League, Allentown County League, Rocking Chair League and South End Sunday School League clubs in entering.

Three umpires have been named—George Rice, Tommy Robinson and Fred Neus. Four arbiters will be appointed and all will be used in each contest—one behind the plate and the other three on the bases. All tilts will be played at Community Park.

Entry blanks may be secured from the sports department of either The Times or The News.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (AP)—Draft officials moved World Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis closer to the army today.

Moreover, he would not have to don a uniform then if he decided to contest the listing and convinced his draft board that he should not have been placed in the 1-A bracket.

At Greenwood Lake, N. Y., Louis said he would not ask the Chicago board for reconsideration.

Joe said he always had been willing to join the army and would do anything at anytime he was asked.

Boston Braves Lost Out when Landis Vetoed Bing Crosby and His Horses

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Just before the desperate Dodgers of Brooklyn set out to prove their fortunes in the West, their shepherd, Leland Stanford MacPhail, treated the customers to a slight courtesy on the house.

The National Anthem was sung by Bing Crosby, horseman and minstrel. It was a recorded job, but the fans did not object to that. They inhaled the patriotic air of Mr. Crosby with great relish.

This makes Crosby practically unanimous. You hear him wherever you go, at restaurants, tea shops, dance halls, filling stations, saloons, auction sales, dog fights, pig stickings, and now in a ball park. He has the most ubiquitous set of pipes in the world, and a very handy sort of guy he is, when it comes to trolling a stage.

The boys got to thinking, though, as they heard the Washington line relay the lyrics of Mr. Francis Scott Key to the multitude, that this was just a small sample of what might have been if Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis liked horses and vice versa.

Judge Doesn't Like Horses

The judge, high commissioner of baseball, is chilly toward horses of all descriptions, but particularly so toward the breed of unknown that gallops around race tracks. Mr. Crosby, as the world knows, is very partial to this type of zebra.

A few years ago the judge scowled at the operations of Rogers Hornsby, a confirmed horse-player. Big league baseball has been too small for Hornsby ever since.

A little later, when the Boston Braves were on the market, as they almost always are, Mr. Crosby spoke of pooling some cash with a couple of colleagues and buying the club. He was a solid baseball fan, he had the doubloons, and he was serious about the deal.

It sounded like a good thing to all concerned until Judge Landis began to pry into the habits and antecedents of Mr. Crosby.

"This crooner, this thrush," said the judge coldly, "does he not also operate a—I hope there are no ladies present—a race track?"

"Well, yes, judge," admitted the scout, "he does seem to be interested in some sort of merry-go-round on the coast."

"And does he not wager occasionally on the—please furnish me the office after I speak this word—the horses?"

"I guess he has been seen to buy a mutual ticket now and then. But he never cashed one," added the scout hastily.

"That is no excuse," said Judge Landis. "We will ignore Mr. Crosby's proposition and consider the incident closed."

Then, full of holy zeal, the judge ordered Charles F. Adams, owner of the Braves and a race track operator himself, to sell his stock to some refined non-horse people as soon as possible, which Mr. Adams eventually did.

Better Than Pitchers

The voice of Crosby floating over Ebbets field to the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner" the other day suggested big things for the Braves, if the judge should ever change his mind. Those pipes, properly applied, could win pennants.

The National Anthem makes a nice lead-off number. President Crosby of the Braves would then announce his pitching assignment in the key of two flats, the umpires taking note of same, "Barnabe Bill the Sailor" or "Asleep on the Deep," for instance, would serve fair warning that Sailor Will Posedel was the nominee.

After singing a medley of the hits of 1914—the year of the miracle Braves—Mr. Crosby would become justly incensed at the incompetence of the umpires, robbing his boys, and would render a chorus of "Three Blind Mice." On being ejected from the game, Mr. Crosby would cut loose with a few defiant bars of "You May Try, But You Can't Brush Me Off" and leave the ball park—to be replaced at the microphone by various Crosby recordings of victory songs until the Braves had the game tucked away.

If nothing else, the Braves would pack in the customers all around the league. Pending a change of heart by Judge Landis, the next best thing is to teach Casey Stengel to sing "Mexicali Rose" and put him to work at that public address system—North American Newspaper Alliance.

Those Photo Finishes

The argument over photo finishes at various tracks is still picking up fire and smoke. You can't wonder much about this since $20,000 or $30,000 may be riding on that inch or so which the human eye can't figure out. In the course of a racing year that shutter's click means a matter of millions—many millions.

You hear for example, that the outside horse is the favored one in the camera's decision. You hear many things. Now we get another angle from Bogart Rogers, the alert Californian. Bogie writes—

"When Del Mar opened in 1937, Bing Crosby, Bill LeBaron, Bud Fegelson and myself sponsored a guy named Lorenzo del Riccio, who popped up with a new type camera for photo finishes. We knew del Riccio to be one of the outstanding optical engineers in the picture business, we knew something about racing problems and were, of course, very interested in them, and we checked with a number of studio technicians, than whom there are no better photographic experts in the country, who assured us that del Riccio's gadget was theoretically greatly superior to the motion picture type of camera then generally in use at tracks. So he built one and it was tried out at Del Mar with complete success, and since then it has gone into Caliente, Hollywood Park, Tanforan, Longacres—about all the western tracks except Santa Anita, which owns its own equipment and is loathe to change.

"Alfred Vanderbilt took it back to Pimlico three seasons ago and it has been there ever since—and at most of the Maryland summer tracks.

"Believe me when I tell you that it is superior in every respect to the motion picture type camera—accuracy, reliability, speed, and several exclusive features. Here on the coast racing officials—slow to accept it at first because they didn't quite understand it—now almost unanimously consider it the ideal device for accurately timed race finishes, since it was specifically designed for that purpose.

Our sole interest in this argument is that it happens to be something that involves many millions of dollars for a vast and growing army of horse players, sane or insane. It is something that leaves

Dodgers, Rained Out, Face Twin Bill Today

Weatherman May Have Main Role In Flag Battle

Cardinals Hope Brooklyn Has To Play Every Game on String

By EARL HILLIGAN
CHICAGO, Sept. 9 (P)—The rains came with a vengeance to Wrigley field today, finally washing out the Chicago-Brooklyn opener in the second inning to postpone Brooklyn's start of a western swing during which the pace-making Dodgers hope to clinch the National League pennant.

A heavy storm delayed the start of the day's battle almost fifty minutes, but it finally got under way despite a drenching outburst. Then with the Dodgers leading 1 to 0 after an inning and a half, another storm broke loose to force a doubleheader program for tomorrow.

High To Pitch Opener
In this important twin bill, Manager Leo Durocher announced he would start Kirby Higbe in the opener, following with either Newell Kimball or Luke Hamlin, who pitched the lone inning against the sixth place Cubs today. Manager Jim Wilson of Chicago said he would come back again with Claude Passeau, his starter today, and follow up with young Paul Erickson.

Hamlin disposed of the Cubs in the first today with little trouble, walking Phil Cavaretta with two out but ending the inning by fanning Bill Nicholson. The Dodgers got no-where in the first, but Doph Canham opened the second by ramming a single off Lou Stringer's glove and then going to second on a sacrifice by Lew Riese, after which Medwick was intentionally passed.

Dodgers Have 19 Games Left
Harold (Pee-Wee) Reese forced Medwick at second and was safe as Bob Sturgeon threw wild over first. Camilli scoring easily. Mickey Owen grounded out and the rain forced a stop seconds later and eventually postponement.

Since the Dodgers have nineteen games remaining on their schedule and the second-place St. Louis Cardinals have twenty-one (including the Philadelphia game postponed today) the weather may play an important part in the flag fight—with the Cardinals hoping the Dodgers have to play every game on their string.

The weather prediction for Chicago tomorrow was rain.

Cards in Twin-Bill With Lowly Phillies

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9 (P)—The weatherman may take a staggering wallop at the St. Louis Cardinals' pennant hopes if he doesn't come up with something besides rain for tomorrow's doubleheader with the eighth-place Philadelphia Phillies.

A persistent rain, beginning at noon with a windstorm, washed out today's contest between the two teams and a twin bill was automatically scheduled for their last meeting of the season.

Showers and cooler weather have been forecast for tomorrow, making the outlook none too optimistic.

The Cardinals have backed on knocking off the futile Phils twice and cancellation of the games would be a disastrous blow. It would mean two near-certain victories lost beyond recall, and the Cardinals need every victory they can get.

If the Redbirds win sixteen of their remaining twenty-one contests, the Dodgers would have to take only

The regular campaign of the South Cumberland Sunday School Softball League drew to a close yesterday with Emmanuel trimming Moffatt Memorial 8-3 in a game called after four and one-half innings on account of rain and Baptist winning by forfeit over Livingstone.

In contests Monday, St. John's drubbed Livingstone 7-1 with Bill Davis and Carl Robinson of St. John's and Long of Livingstone clouting home runs and Grace forfeited to Moffatt Memorial.

United Brethren, Grace and Calvary are sure of berths in the Shaughnessy playoff series but Baptist can tie Trinity for fourth by winning two postponed tussles. The first and third-place clubs and the second and fourth-place outfits will meet in preliminary three-game series with the surviving combinations clashing in a best-three-out-of-five game series for the championship.

thirteen of their final nineteen to wind up the schedule on top of the pack.

Saving his left-handers for the all-important series with Brooklyn, starting Thursday, Manager Billy Southworth nominated lean Lou Varneke of no-hit fame and Harry Wambert for mound duty against the Phils. Ike Pearson and St. Johnson are the probable pitchers for Philadelphia, who are shooting everything they have at the Cardinals.

Pete Reiser, Like "Pepper" Martin, Hurt Frequently

Brooklyn Dodgers' Youthful Star Was Born To Be a Cardinal

NEW YORK, Sept. 9 (The Special News Service)—Some years ago, in an interview, Pepper Martin took exception to the suggestion that he always was getting hurt. He was reminded that he frequently was out with a broken finger, or hand or toe. The Pepper studied this thoughtfully a moment, then replied, very seriously:

"No big bones, though." Which is using the around-the-block approach to the subject of Pete Reiser, currently Brooklyn's prairie flower, running wilder every hour. Pete also is out frequently with injuries. Once it was a sprained ankle, again a scintillating nerve, and abnormally, and once because the pitchers' timing was off. They couldn't hit his bat.

Nothing serious, understand. "No big bones," as Pepper would say, and the kid found time to lead the league on hitting and break up more ball games than the Dodgers used to win all season. Bill Brandt's clipping file at National League headquarters is peppered with such headlines as "Reiser's homer wins in tenth" and "Reiser drives in nine runs in series with Bucs."

Born To Be Cardinal

And the ironic part of it is the fact that Two-Gun Pete, doing his damndest to keep St. Louis from winning the pennant, was born to be a Cardinal! It's a safe bet that if his destiny had been fulfilled and he was tearing around the bases for St. Louis instead of Brooklyn the fans would be saying now: "That's a great race in the National League, wasn't it?"

When Pete was a kid, scurrying happily about St. Louis sandlots and trying to make up his mind whether to throw a baseball right-handed or left-handed, or just kick it away, his hero was Pepper Martin, at that time quite a card on and off the field.

He worshipped the ground the Wild Hoss galloped over, dreaming of the day he would emulate Pepper's World Series feats. He may do it, but the script has been revised slightly, as the team he hoped to be playing for he now hopes fervently will be a place horse.

He started out all right, but Commissioner Landis pulled a switch. The Cards had signed him after a tryout in a baseball school, and had sent him to Springfield, Mo., from where he went to New Iberia, La., Union Springs, Tenn., and Newport, Ark. No wonder the Cards can keep their future stars under cover, using such hideouts.

Dodgers Come To Rescue

Anyway, Landis caught up with the Cards in 1938, and Reiser was left stranded. Just when he was wondering where his next dollar was coming from and where his last one went a Dodger scout offered him $100 to sign a contract.

He was assigned to Dayton, but didn't play there, going to Superior, Wis., and in the spring of 1939 was taken South with the Dodgers as excess baggage. Leo Durocher liked the lad, and wanted to see him get a chance.

We can still see him down there, a knobby-muscled, copper-jointed youngster such as you might see in any Sunday afternoon game in the village cow pasture. But Durocher, never a guy to run down a young player, bubbled with enthusiasm.

"The greatest young prospect I ever saw," he declared the hadn't seen Pee-Wee Reese yet.

The rest is more or less modern history, how he was brought up from Elmira the middle of last year, how he was shoved into centerfield this year and told that the job was his, and how he's been the club's trigger-man, always making the killing in the clutch.

And the funny part of it is he should have been a Cardinal.

Tomboy Gridders Gives Up Game for Golf

FORT WORTH, Texas (P)—Another tomboy, like Patty Berg, has given up sandlot football for golf. She's 15-year-old Polly Riley. She took up golf because her mother made her quit football three years ago.

She's played in two Southern and two state tournaments. In 1940 she won the first flight of the Southern and went to the championship semifinals this year. Recently she carded a 79 to win the Omaha (Neb.) Field club's medal tournament.

You'll remember Patty Berg's folks had to order her away from sandlot gridiron before she got interested in golf. Patty became national champion and Polly says she may win the big crown some day, too.

Bob Feller Easy Winner over A's

Cleveland Ace Racks Up Twenty-Third Victory by 13-7 Margin

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9 (P)—Bob Feller chalked up victory twenty-three with little difficulty today as the Cleveland Indians coupled thirteen hits and four walks with five Philadelphia errors to trounce the Athletics, 13 to 7.

Feller allowed nine hits, but hurled a two-hit shutout ball until the seventh. He coasted through the last three frames on a big lead his teammates had built up at the expense of Lester McCrabb and Tom Ferrick. The boxscore:

Young's Homers Beat Pirates 4-2

Hal Schumacher of Giants Bests Rip Sewell in Mound Duel

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 9 (P)—Babe Young swept the New York Giants to a 4 to 2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates today by hitting two home runs, one of them with a mate aboard in the tenth inning.

The game was pretty much a mound duel between Hal Schumacher of the Giants and Rip Sewell of the Pirates. Schumacher huffed single and scored on a single by Mel Ott to take a 1 to 0 lead in the first inning.

Defending Champ Bows in Women's Golf Tournament

Betty Jameson Loses Putting Touch—Medal Proves Jinx

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 9 (P)—Defending Champion Betty Jameson of San Antonio, Tex., putted herself out of her dream of becoming the fifth three-in-a-row women's National golf winner today when she lost a heart-breaking first round match to the placid Janet Younger of White Plains, N. Y., by a single hole at the country club.

The attractive Texan, probably the most deliberate competitor in the starting field of 116, thus joined yesterday's other three co-medallists on the sidelines of the women's National golf championship tourney.

All those who shared the qualifying round's honors with Miss Jameson wound up on the short end of 3 and 2 matches—Mrs. Reinert Torgerson of Great Neck, N. Y., ousted Grace Amory of Locust Valley, N. Y.; Louise Suggs of Atlanta, the Southern thistle, bested Jean Bauer of Providence, and Mrs. Sylvia Annenberg Leichter of Flushing, N. Y., put out 21-year-old Alice Belanger from nearby Beverly.

By going out in 37, one over par, Miss Jameson found herself four up at the turn, as her successful opponent used up forty-two strokes on that journey. The latter, however, settled down to serious golf and snaggd three birdies while coming home in 34, two under.

Losers Putting Touch

Despite that blistering finish, Miss Jameson could have survived if she retained her putting touch, which she suddenly lost on the fifteenth green, where she dropped back on even terms after taking three from twenty feet.

She then presented Miss Younger with her winning margin by trapping her second on the 160-yard sixteenth and then missing a ten-footer. The White Plains victor played cautiously and halved the last two holes.

Just Another Coaching Problem

OKLAHOMA CITY (P)—The backers of the annual All-Star state high school football game, played late every August, agreed to quit using college coaches two years ago when the mentors complained that they did not have time to give to it.

But at practice sessions for the 1941 version coaches from almost every college in the state were looking on.

None feels he can afford to miss—for fear a rival will get the inside track on a top varsity prospect.

Lenient Officials

WASHINGTON—Major league scores are more lenient in doling out base hits on questionable plays in Boston and St. Louis than in any other big league cities.

Gun Club Plans Practice Shoot

Ham Shoot Slated Here Sept. 25; Keyser Plans Melon Event Sept. 18

The Cumberland All-Ghan club will hold a practice shoot tomorrow at 2:30 p. m., at its traps at the All-Ghan Shrine Club on the Baltimore pike. A program of trap and skeet shooting is planned.

A ham shoot will be sponsored by the local club on Thursday, Sept. 25, at 1 p. m. The program in which the gunners will compete for hams will consist of skeet and trap shooting and a special card contest for non-shooters. Invitations have been forwarded to scatter gun artists in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland.

There will be no shoot at the local club September 18 to enable members of the club to participate in the annual watermelon shoot at the Meadow Lark Gun club, near Keyser, W. Va., at 1:30. In this event the contestants are divided into two teams and the team losing the match will treat the winners to a watermelon feast at the close of the contest.

The Delicats won the City League title while the Grocers copped the Allegany County League championship.

Paw Paw Boosters Defeat Wiley Ford

PAW PAW, W. Va., Sept. 9—The Paw Paw Boosters, playing their first baseball game since July 13, made it fourteen victories in fifteen starts by defeating the Wiley Ford aggregation here 5-2.

The winners collected all their runs in the first two innings with Wiley Ford getting one in the fifth and another in the eighth. Bohrer sparked the Boosters with three blows in four trips, two of them doubles.

Next Sunday, Paw Paw will tangle with Wiley Ford in a return game on the Taylor diamond in Cumberland, Md., at 2:30. The score: PAW PAW 140 010 003-5 4; Wiley Ford—None. Whisner and Rube Paw Paw—Robby and McCool.

Formulation of Definite Plan To Correct Traffic Problem Here Is Discussed

Mayor to Consult with City Councilmen on Appointment of Special City Commission

Steps looking to the formulation of a definite co-ordinated and possibly codified program for improvement of the increasing city traffic problem were taken at a three-hour conference of city leaders and city officials last evening at the Algonquin hotel.

The purpose, as explained by Charles A. Piper, chairman of the Traffic committee of the senior chamber of commerce, which group had arranged the conference, was to evolve, if possible, means of getting around the impediments that have blocked a solution of the problem during the last two years the committee has been studying it without getting anywhere.

Such a program, it was believed, if clearly outlined and publicly supported, would make it possible to present definite plans to the next legislature whereby both financial and legislative difficulties could be smoothed out. Meanwhile such action within the reach of the city could be taken in successive steps toward rounding out a complete program.

To Consult Council
The upshot of the whole discussion was a promise by Mayor Irvine, responding to a suggestion by the Traffic committee chairman, to consult with the city councilmen on the appointment of a special city traffic planning commission.

Piper said his committee had given thoughtful study to various angles of the problem, including overhead bridge projects, the Canal street extension from the Western Maryland railroad station to the Winew street subway and new street openings, but had been unable to work out a co-ordinated program. That the committee believed, could better be devised through a survey by outside experts without waiting for the survey to be dovetailed with the Flood Control plan.

Mayor Harry Irvine was asked to present his views on the subject, which he did at considerable length and detail. The only drawback about formulating a program or event taking initial steps in one, he declared, is purely financial, as he and the city council are anxious and willing to solve the traffic congestion problem as anybody.

No Funds Available
Explaining the financial condition of the city, its legal limitations on tax levies and bond issues, and declaring that state legislators had ignored the responsibilities these entail and imposed additional obligations over which the city authorities had no control, Irvine declared there is absolutely no money available with which to pay the costs of any survey. If anybody can find it amidst all the things the city is obliged to care for, he said, he and the council would be only too happy to order it. "If we had $50,000 to use," he declared, "we could easily solve this traffic problem."

As for an overhead bridge project, the mayor questioned the advisability of taking on this obligation at present in view of other projects the city has on hand, such as the Memorial hospital project, which has been a defense necessity by reason of the fact that it is supposed to care for draftee patients of three counties.

Rerouting of trucks, improvement of rail crossing traffic, elimination of half of the down town parking. (Continued on Page 10, Col. 3)

Blocking of Road Will Be Probed
Engineers Instructed To Make Report on Legislative Road

Investigation of an allegedly "extremely hazardous" condition on the old Legislative road at Midlothian was ordered yesterday morning by the board of county commissioners.

The board, acting on a complaint made by Stephen G. Winter, instructed John H. Carscaden, county road engineer, and Douglas P. LeFevre, district maintenance superintendent for the State Roads Commission, to inspect the road and make a report as soon as possible.

Winter complained several weeks ago that a mine tippie provided insufficient clearance, both vertically and horizontally, and that an engine house also blocked the road. The condition of a bridge was also rapped by the Midlothian man.

Yesterday's action by the commissioners came after they were advised by Leo T. Downey, State Roads Commission district engineer, to whom the complaint had been forwarded, that it was purely a county matter in which the State Roads Commission had no jurisdiction.

LaSalle Enrollment Now Is Largest in History of School

Two hundred boys are now enrolled in LaSalle high school, North Centre street, the greatest number in the thirty-two year history of the school, according to Brother Justin.

Last year's enrollment was 175 and the graduating class of forty-six boys was an all-time high figure.

Brother Justin said there are forty-seven boys in the present senior class.

Mercury Reaches Two-Year High For September

Temperature Soars to 98 for Highest Mark Since Sept. 8, 1939

Yesterday was the warmest September day in two years as the mercury soared to ninety-eight degrees at 4 p. m. on the city health department's official thermometer located on the roof of the city hall.

Health department records showed that yesterday's ninety-eight degree maximum was the highest recorded since the ninety-nine registered on September 8, 1939.

Ninety-three degrees was the highest temperature for September on record for September, 1940.

The all-time high for the month of September, however, was 103 1-2 degrees, which was recorded on the first day of the ninth month in 1932.

Local weather reports show that the mercury has reached ninety degrees on two other days this month—the fifth and eighth.

The highest temperature last month was ninety-seven degrees on August 9.

Scattered thunderstorms are predicted for today by the weather man.

Committee of Exchange Club To Discuss Plans For Model Plane Meet

Plans for staging the semi-annual model airplane contest of the Cumberland Exchange Club will be discussed following the regular dinner meeting Monday, September 15, at 6 p. m. in the Central Y. M. C. A.

The model airplane committee of the club comprises C. Athey Murray, chairman, Jack Waugh, Dr. Frank E. Stamp, F. Harry Rockwell and Edward A. "Bud" Cosgrove. Brother Justin, of LaSalle high school, is contest director.

Two Women Jailed On Larceny Charge

Pair Sentenced to Three Months in Jack-Pot Theft Case

Arrested August 29 in connection with the looting of slot machines at several clubs in this section, two women who gave their names as Ollie Pearl Reynolds, of Dallas, Texas, and Ida Merle Christian, of Kansas City, were each sentenced to three months in the county jail yesterday, in trial magistrates court on larceny charges.

Police said the women, wearing cloaks, formed a screen around the machines while the men used small drills to open the coin receptacles and empty the jackpots. Approximately $400 was found on the quartet.

The men, Virgil E. Norton, of Portland, Ore., and H. L. Blackwell, of St. Louis, gave notice of an appeal to circuit court when they were sentenced last week to serve eighteen months in the Maryland House of Correction on charges of larceny.

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., who heard the case, said bond for the men would be $1,500 each and $500 for the women, if they sought release from jail prior to the October term of circuit court. It was indicated that the woman, who States Attorney Morgan C. Harris said have no criminal record, would be released when the men's cases are disposed of in circuit court.

Morris Baron, attorney for the quartet, sought to have the men's sentences modified, but Magistrate Bruce cited that the Federal Bureau of Investigation records revealed both had long criminal careers. Blackwell has been arrested twenty times since 1935 in several states on charges ranging from burglary to vagrancy, while Norton has been jailed a dozen times in the last seven years on similar charges.

W. Va. Is Urged To Meet Half Of Bridge Cost

Commissioners Ask Roads Body To Approve Key-Ser-McCoole Span

The board of county commissioners yesterday agreed to send a telegram to the West Virginia State Road Commission urging that it cooperate with the Maryland State Roads Commission in the construction of a new inter-state bridge over the Potomac river between McCoole and Keyser.

The request that the telegram be sent was made by James C. Shriver and Harold W. Smith of the chamber of commerce.

Plans for the new bridge were approved by the road commissions of both states about two years ago, but work was delayed when it was proposed that the Western Maryland railway crossing be eliminated at the same time.

Since that time, costs of material have gone up and the appeal to the West Virginia commission is being made in an effort to assure that it will once again agree to meet half the costs of the bridge.

Elimination of the railway crossing by increasing the elevation of the bridge will incur no additional cost to either state, as this work will be paid for by federal funds.

Settlement Seen Soon in Fight Over Court Costs

Allegany and Washington Counties To 'Get Together' in Dispute

Allegany and Washington counties may "get together" soon to straighten out the amount of court costs each owes the other for removed cases, it was indicated yesterday morning at the meeting of the Allegheny county commissioners.

The battle of financial statements may be ended, it appeared, by a conference between the two county boards, or their representatives, with each side armed with all the data obtainable.

Washington county got the jump on Allegany last week by producing figures purporting to show that Allegany owes it $12,406 for removed cases over a period of thirty years. This development came after Allegany threatened to sue Washington county for costs due here for cases in recent years.

The best Allegany has produced is a bill for approximately $4,500 for cases since 1935, including two murder trials here in July, costs of which were $1,905.

But officials were quick to point out yesterday that the $12,406 figure from Washington county came from the clerk of the court, with no indication whether any of this amount had been paid of not. The Allegheny commissioners were positive that much of this must have been paid.

Undaunted by this development, however, they made plans for a search of the Allegheny dockets for the past thirty years to dig up a figure which they are sure will top Washington county's $12,406.

The upshot will probably be, observers said, that Allegany and Washington county officials will get together here or at Hagerstown in the near future to compare their data and reach some settlement.

The confusion concerning the costs apparently arose from the policy of cancelling court costs in one county against a like amount in the other.

Simon W. Green, president of the Allegheny county commissioners, said yesterday that efforts were made several years ago to reach some sort of a settlement with Washington county on the matter and then to initiate a pay-as-you-go policy. But dispute dragged on until it was brought to a head when Allegany billed Washington for $1,905 costs in the two murder cases removed here for trial with the Allegheny board threatening to sue if necessary.

Strike of Truck Line Employees Nears Settlement

Agreement with Most Cumberland Firms Results in Increase

The two-day strike of trucking line employees in the Cumberland-Hagerstown-Winchester area was virtually at an end last night.

C. E. Stutzman, business agent for Local 433 of the A.F. of L.-affiliated Teamsters and Chauffeurs union, said that employees of only two Cumberland lines remained on strike.

These he named as the Steina Motor and Transportation Company and the Cumberland Motor Express Corporation. Employees of the Cumberland Motor Express are to meet this morning at 8 o'clock to vote on whether to accept the contract provisions agreed to by the company, Stutzman said, adding that it was impossible to arrange a meeting yesterday.

Other Lines Operating
In the case of the Steina firm, Stutzman said the management had refused to accept the demands of the strikers and had made no effort to open negotiations looking toward a settlement.

All other major truck lines in the Cumberland area are operating after signing union agreements, the union agent said, except Barnwell Brothers, Inc., which he described as operating on a non-union basis, and Bennett Transfer and the Appel firm, which are operating pending final settlement, expected this morning.

Agreement has been reached by all Hagerstown truckers and their employees, and the situation is virtually cleared up in Winchester, Va., Stutzman reported.

In Winchester, Stutzman said, agreements have been worked out with all companies except Novick, which is operating under a temporary agreement expiring Saturday.

The Novick dispute involves the failure of garage men to belong to the union, it was stated.

Increase Granted
Stutzman said the agreement with Cumberland firms provided an average increase of from $6 to $8 weekly for inter-urban trips and a twelve-cents-an-hour increase for city hauling. The city hauling scale calls for a guaranteed weekly wage of $31.20 here for both drivers and helpers, according to the union agent.

The wage increases for roadmen applies to the Hagerstown area as well, Stutzman went on, while Hagerstown city hauling rates were also jumped twelve cents an hour to $33.20.

Retailer Praised For Co-operation During Emergency

Merchants Doing Good Job Keeping Prices Down, Somerville Says

The role the retailer is playing in the national defense program was praised last night in the weekly broadcast of the chamber of commerce.

Responsibilities devolving on the retailer during the national emergency were listed by William M. Somerville, attorney, as including guarding against price increases not justified by cost increases; the avoidance of "scarehead" advertising, that is, the type of advertising that urges the consumer to buy now because prices are rising; the insurance, as far as possible, of an adequate supply of consumer goods; and the avoidance of any semblance of profiteering.

Prices Kept Down
Speaking over Radio Station WTBO, Somerville declared that the retailer "has been doing a good job in keeping prices down insofar as he can control them."

"In many lines of goods," the speaker said, "the wholesale prices have advanced twenty-five to thirty-five per cent, whereas retail prices in Cumberland have increased not much more than ten per cent."

"With the increased demand for materials for tanks, guns, ships and needs for our army and navy," Somerville went on, "many items which your retailer has been handling will be diverted into these channels."

"Honesty and fair dealing are materials to replace these in order to take care of your needs with as little inconvenience as possible."

"Personal Purchasing Agent"
"Your reputable retail merchants who have proved their honesty and integrity to their communities act as your personal purchasing agent in the markets of the United States."

"There are good and bad retailers; the good ones, fortunately, represent the great majority of the nation's merchants. They are just as much opposed as consumers are to fly-by-night and other merchants who engage in bad or dishonest trade practices."

"Now, eliminate the unreliable merchants; what proof do we have that the reputable merchant is co-operating? The proof is abundant. Retailers in every part of the country have pledged themselves through their chambers of commerce and trade associations to cooperate voluntarily in every possible way with the government and the public in expediting the defense program and establishing and stabilizing our emergency economy, and they are doing exactly what they pledged."

"I don't want you to have the impression that the retailer can entirely prevent price fluctuation. Costs are bound to increase due to heavier taxes, higher wages and shorter hours. Over these factors the merchant has little control, nor do I want you to feel that your merchant can always keep a supply of every type of goods on hand sufficient to cover all needs, but I do believe that the nation's merchants on the whole will voluntarily continue to do everything in their power to give the best service possible and, whatever the stresses and strains imposed upon them by the national emergency, they will continue to handle a large volume of business in Cumberland and the nation; that they will continue to maintain a substantial payroll in our city and, at the same time, make every effort to continue to act as your representative in the nation's markets and adjust their operations to the defense needs of the country."

Retailing 'Big Business'
Somerville pointed out that retail business "is big business, even though it is divided up into many units."

"During the last year," the attorney said, $800,000 retail establishments provided employment for between four and five million people. In Cumberland alone, 586 establishments employ 2,513 people, with a payroll of $2,329,000, and a gross business of $21,415,000.

"You will see from these figures that the retail business in Cumberland is an important factor in our employment, providing one of our largest payrolls. It handles merchandise each year nearly equivalent in dollar value to the total annual payroll of our major industries."

The retailers perform an essential service, both to the manufacturer and to you as a consumer. Were it not for the retail establishments scattered throughout the country, there would be no outlet for the goods produced by the Celanese, the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, or your breweries. Is the retailer who comes in contact with the public. He feels its pulse and keeps the manufacturer posted on what the public wants."

Police Experience Sensation when Bank Alarm Box Goes Off

Police last night experienced a sensation which struck like a "blitzkrieg." About 8:50 o'clock the alarm box at the First National Bank, Baltimore and South George streets, let out with a loud "clang" and a red light on another alarm box at headquarters flickered. Then things began to happen.

Three officers in a squad car with siren wide open rushed to the bank to investigate. They returned shortly afterwards but were unable to say what caused the alarms to go off.

It was believed that either an object came in contact with the alarm system or a short circuit caused the trouble.

Council of Social Agencies Planned By Local Groups

To Serve as Clearing House for Problems Here; Committee Is Appointed

Plans for the formation of a Council of Social Agencies, which will serve as a clearing house for local relief problems and will keep the public advised as to what each agency actually does, was discussed at an informal dinner last evening in Constitution park by members of local organizations.

The purpose of the council is chiefly one of coordination of all agencies for the creation of a forum on common problems and the exploration of further needs of the community.

A continuation committee comprising Lesser Zussman, of the Allegheny County Welfare Board, chairman; Miss Jeannette Bonig, of the Associated Charities, vice-chairman, and Miss Louise Coulehan, of Allegheny County Chapter, of the Red Cross, secretary, was appointed to obtain information and data from the national organization of social agency councils. A committee which visited the capital last week-end has returned with much information regarding the conservation of petroleum and it will take some time to prepare the script for the radio discussion.

Speakers on the program will be C. Athey Murray, John Wetzel, Jr., and Arthur Mosler, all members of the Club of Human Relations. J. Henry Holzsch, club president, will act as moderator.

Local Rotary Club Entertains Good Will Tourists

Irvine Welcomes Members of Upper Monongahela Valley Association

Friendly greetings were exchanged with zest between Cumberlanders and a party of thirty members of the Upper Monongahela Valley Association of West Virginia at midday yesterday here.

The visitors came into the city in a motorcade, embellished with the association's sound truck, and were guests of the local Rotary club and city officials at its weekly luncheon at the Port Cumberland hotel.

The motorcaders are on a three-day trek through Western Maryland and South Central and Western Pennsylvania to tell citizens of the possibilities of their own territory in West Virginia and to learn more about the advantages of the section.

The trip was the fifth annual such tour sponsored by the association.

Welcomed by Mayor

As spokesman for the community, Mayor Harry Irvine welcomed the visitors at the opening of the luncheon program and extended them the good will of its citizens. "When we consider the hectic condition of affairs elsewhere in the world, we are able to have such tours as these. How long we may be able to have them is hard to say, but I hope we can continue to have them, and even more of them, as they bring splendid results."
